GREAT DRIVE ON TURKISH CAPITAL MAY BRING END OF THE WAR BEFORE CLOSE OF THIS YEAR; ALLIES READY

Russian and Roumanian Forces Expected to Move Southward Through Bulgaria; Veteran Troops Commanded by Grand Duke Nicholas Will Take Part; German General Staff Deceived

Paris, Oct. 3.—A mighty drive on Constantinople may bring the decision in the war before the end of the present year. The knowledge that this drive is coming is regarded as the explanation of the alarm felt in Germany, as shown by the refusal of the private bankers and moneyed classes to subscribe to the new loan and by the speech delivered on Thursday last in the Reichstag by the chancellor of the empire, with its appeal for new sacrifices.

The preparations for the march on the Turkish capital have been under way for a considerable period and there is now no longer any motive for concealment. The subject is being alluded to in rather a frank manner in the press of the entente nations.

The Prussian great general staff realized the trend of the allies' campaign only when it was too late. A desperate effort was made to retrieve the situation when Field Marshal von Hindenburg was appointed to the supreme command. Field Marshal von Mackensen being sent to bar the road of the Russians southward through Bulgaria, and for a moment there was concern in the camps of the allies lest he should succeed in creating a situation which would halt for all appreciable time the projected operations of the Russians and Roumanians.

All previous information given out regarding the intentions of the allies in the southeastern field was designed to furnish the impression that Nish or Sofia was the objective of the projected Russian movement southward through Roumania. The conquest of either of these cities would be of great importance to the allies, but would be trivial in comparison with that of Constantinople.

Germany's blunder. The military onlookers in the allied countries express astonishment that the Prussian military chief committed the blunder of not appreciating the situation, or at least of not taking into account and making provision for a move of this kind.

The Grand Duke Nicholas's army, using the conquered port of Trebizond as a base, is expected to have a vitally important part in the conquest of Constantinople. Of course, the plans of the allies are being kept secret, but it is regarded as established that this time the attack against the Ottoman Empire will be made simultaneously from the Bosphorus and from the land side by those armies operating through Bulgaria.

From Asia Minor. It is believed that the bulk of the Russian army in Asia Minor, composed of hardened veterans, will be landed on the Bulgarian coast to co-operate with the armies moving southward, although it also has been suggested that it may be disembarked at Constantinople to aid the combined Russian and Roumanian forces in sweeping aside the present opposing Bulgarian-Turkish-Prussian troops under Field Marshal von Mackensen. Time and the extension of the situation will decide that point.

Brian's Praised. The real purpose of the Salonica adventure, which for many months was a problem with which the military observers wrestled, is now clearly perceived. With the new light comes a high tribute to the French leaders who were responsible for it. While Gen. Joffre's part in deciding on the expedition has been well known and much discussed, that of the head of the French government, Aristide Briand, was less well known. To M. Briand are now being paid compliments of the very highest kind in the press of the allied nations. It is known that it was only by tireless insistence that he succeeded in bringing it about.

To win the war decisively and quickly, he argued, communications must be opened up with Russia in order that France and Great Britain might be able to supply the great mass of Russian recruits with equipment, artillery, arms and ammunition.

FRENCH SPOIL PLANS OF GERMAN LEADERS NORTH OF THE SOMME

Paris, Oct. 3.—Violent fighting has been in progress north of Rancourt, north of the Somme, the war office announced this afternoon. The French curtain of fire and machine guns were effective in checking German attempts to debouch from the St. Pierre Vaast wood in that region.

DIED IN SAPPERTON.

New Westminster, Oct. 3.—George Hardy, aged 73, a resident of this city and district for the past 28 years, is dead at the family residence, 465 Fader street, Sapperton. He was born in England, and came to Canada in 1882.

German Plan South of Dwinsk Failure, Petrograd Reports

Petrograd, Oct. 3.—German forces took the offensive south of Dwinsk, attacking the Russian lines in force near Novo Alexandrovsk, the war office announced today. They were met by an intense defensive fire from the Russian guns and forced back to their positions.

CANADIAN TROOPS BEARING A SHARE IN THE HEAVY FIGHTING NORTH OF THE SOMME; GUNS DOING GOOD WORK

Men From Dominion Engaged in Contest in Thiepval-Courcelette Region Since Friday, it is Reported; Casualties Have Been Light for Operations of Such Importance

Ottawa, Oct. 3.—Canadian troops have been in the thick of the fighting north of the Somme since Friday last, according to a cable message received here today. Although the point at which the Canadian forces have been engaged is not mentioned, it is presumed that it is in the Thiepval-Courcelette region, near the Hessian and Zollern trenches, where, according to an official statement issued in London last night, the Germans have been making desperate attempts to prevent any further advance by the British and to keep them from crossing the Ancre river to the left of the present fighting line.

The message states that the casualties suffered by the Canadian forces have been comparatively light in the recent fighting, having regard to the importance of the operations. Efficient support by the guns is held to be largely responsible for this. It is stated here that the recent heavy lists of casualties published in Canada include casualties sustained as far back as the beginning of September. The week-end casualties totalled 994, but only a portion of these resulted from the most recent fighting.

DERNBURG'S EFFORT WITH THE STATES

Hopes Germany Can Resume
Savagery at Sea Without Interference

Berlin, Oct. 2, via London, Oct. 3.—In a long article in the Tageblatt, Dr. Bernhard Dernburg explains that President Wilson stands for the United States, as it is his duty to do. Any statesman, he says, who did not cater exclusively to the interests of his own country would deserve contempt and political annihilation. Statesmen like President Wilson, he continues, consider it their chief duty to serve the present and future prestige of the United States, increase its influence on the western continent and the adjacent seas, and seek for world peace, which would make possible the exploitation of the yet largely dormant economic forces of that vast country. This policy, doubtless very popular in the United States, he says, has affected Germany's interests, in some cases, very unfavorably, but that must not veil the eyes to the necessity of the United States if Germany wishes the United States to understand her own particular requirements.

Anti-Germanism. Dr. Dernburg continues, explaining how when two years ago he went to the United States, he was astonished at the prevailing anti-Germanism, but it was only natural, in view of the entente's press campaign, and the fact that many things European look quite different when seen from the other side of the Atlantic. He thinks, however, that in time a better understanding of the developments of the war will take the edge off the unsympathetic American attitude, such a process necessarily being slower in a country where the facts must soak through the masses of the people before a change of opinion is brought about than in countries where the leading men are not dependent upon public opinion. His article concludes with an expression of the hope that the United States will take a more reasonable view should Germany be compelled again to renew her ruthless submarine warfare in order to force Britain to make peace. He says it was largely to please the United States that certain reservations, but that there are signs that the domineering attitude of Britain toward all neutrals has gradually changed the views of the United States in this respect.

GERMAN STATEMENT.

Berlin, Oct. 3.—The war office announced today that Austrian and German monitors had destroyed the pontoon bridges across the Danube in the rear of the Roumanian forces which had crossed the river and invaded Bulgaria.

Enemy Forces In Transylvania Fell Back at One Point

Berlin, Oct. 3.—Official announcement was made here today that Austro-German troops in Transylvania, in the region north of Fokaras, had withdrawn before superior Roumanian forces.

SOUTH OF THE DANUBE RIVER ROUMANIANS ARE OPERATING TO ENVELOPE VON MACKENSEN

LARGE ATTENDANCE ON OPENING DAY

Excellence of Displays at Home Products Fair Draws Forth Praise

EXHIBITION WILL BE ATTRACTION DURING WEEK

PROGRAMME AT FAIR
This evening—Vaudeville entertainments at 8 and 9 o'clock.
To-morrow, "Savannah Day"—Exhibitors' luncheon at 12.30. Address by James Fullerton, of Eugene, Ore., on "What the Legionary Can Do for Victoria," at 3 p. m. Vaudeville entertainments at 8 and 9 o'clock.

Nearly fourteen hundred people paid for admission to the Home Products Fair yesterday. That is looked upon as almost a record for an opening day, and it augurs well for the success of the event. To-day the attendance was much larger, and it is expected that throughout the week the fair will be the centre of attraction for practically the whole city.

Great surprise was expressed by visitors at the excellence of the exhibits, and particularly at the variety of articles which it was found were being made in the city. Great praise was also given to the managers of the fair for the able way in which the arrangements had been carried out. It is generally recognized that the fair will be of great benefit to the exhibitors as well as proving a pleasure to visitors. One businessman stated this morning that he had already well repaid himself for the trouble and expense undertaken in preparing the exhibit.

Among the interesting exhibits are those representing the districts contiguous to the city. The Gordon Head district exhibit is one of the most important of these. It shows the famous fruit packed by the Gordon Head Fruit Growers' Association, Ltd., and in the centre is a fine crate of Gordon Head strawberries, looking just as fresh and bright and ripe as those grown in June.

The Royal Oak exhibit shows some very fine fruit, and the decorations in connection with it were provided by the Layritz Nursery. The whole display is very fine and a decided attraction to the fair.

The Cowichan district exhibit was collected commercially by the B. Wilson Co. of this city. It is a fine display and reflects credit not only on the growers, but on the enterprise of the Wilson Co. in preparing it.

The Seedgrowers' Association of this city has a very fine display of local grown seeds, and also of vegetables and fruit grown from local seeds. The big squash weighing 122 lbs., grown by A. G. Tait, of Oak Bay, attracts a lot of interest.

ENTENTE POWERS WATCHING SWEDEN

Type of Neutrality of Northern Country Does Not Satisfy Them

London, Oct. 3.—The relations between Sweden and the entente powers are attracting unusual attention here, and there is every indication that the situation threatens to become tense.

With the dispute as to mail seizures still unsettled, the entente powers now point out that the neutrality of Sweden is not so loyal and impartial as it should be. This has drawn from Stockholm a reply as tart and crisp as some of the notes in the mail controversy which were said by Viscount Grey to contain words not usually found in diplomatic correspondence.

Confidence is expressed in the tact of the former minister to Sweden, Sir Esme Howard, to handle Great Britain's interests, for he already has done much to smooth over many points of friction which have arisen since the war began. Sir Esme has been given full authority to act in the mail dispute and is co-operating with the other entente diplomats at Stockholm in making representations as to the latest matters in the controversy.

Threat Already Has Caused Latter to Order Evacuation of Roumanian Fortresses of Silistria and Turtukai; Sofia Says Several Roumanian Battalions Got Across River; Serbian Gains

London, Oct. 3.—Field Marshal von Mackensen, who commands the forces of the central allies operating against the Roumanian and Russian forces in the province of Dobrudja, (Eastern Roumania) has ordered the evacuation of the Danube fortresses of Silistria and Turtukai, recently captured by Teuton, Bulgarian and Turkish forces, says a dispatch from Rome to the Wireless Press.

The reason given for the withdrawal of von Mackensen's forces is that the German commander is in danger of being enveloped by the Roumanian and Russian troops which have crossed the Danube between Rustchuk and Turtukai, South of Bucharest.

Sofia, Oct. 3.—The number of Roumanians who have invaded Bulgaria is placed at several battalions by the Bulgarian war office.

An official statement announcing the crossing of the Danube by the invaders says:

"On the Danube, near Lia-Noo, between Rustchuk and Turtukai, the enemy conveyed to our banks in boats several battalions. Measures have been taken to attack this force."

The withdrawal of the Bulgarian forces which held the Kaimakalan Heights, near the west end of the front in Greek Macedonia, under heavy Serbian artillery fire on the summit, is an official statement, the text of which follows:

"Macedonian front.—In the Lake Prespa region there was considerable artillery activity without infantry action at Hill 1944, south of the Kaimakalan Heights. As a consequence of violent artillery fire on the summit, in order to avoid unnecessary loss, our troops were ordered to withdraw to their main position in the Monglie valley."

"There was violent reciprocal artillery fire west and east of the Vardar. On the Struma front enemy battalions which advanced under the protection of a hurricane of fire succeeded in occupying the villages of Karadjakol, Jenikol and Nevoljen. By counter-attacks we drove the enemy from the two last-named villages to their former positions. Fighting near Karadjakol continues."

"In Dobrudja two Russian divisions attempted twice to advance on the Bechoul-Amzatia-Toprais Sari line, but they were compelled to retreat under the fire of our artillery and infantry."

"There was quiet on the Black Sea coast."

Serbian Gains. Paris, Oct. 3.—The Serbian forces fighting in the Kaimakalan region, near the west end of the front in Greek Macedonia, have made further progress, according to a war office announcement issued this afternoon. They took first line trenches from the Bulgarians and captured another battery.

Bulgarian attacks on British positions on the left bank of the Struma were repulsed, the Bulgarians sustaining heavy losses.

MAJ.-GEN. HUGHES HAS MADE SOME CHANGES

New Adjutant General in London; Brother of Minister at Shorncliffe

Montreal, Oct. 3.—The appointments and changes consequent upon the visit of Maj.-Gen. Sir Sam Hughes to England, the Gazette's correspondent in London cables, have not appeared in orders. Col. A. D. McRae, who has been director of supply and transport at Folkestone, leaves that department.

Col. Frank Reid, the new adjutant-general, has opened offices in London. Another camp is being opened at Shoreham, near Brighton, of which Brigadier-General McDougall will take command. His successor at Shorncliffe probably will be Major-General John Hughes, brother of the minister.

NIGHT QUIET ALONG BRITIS LINE NORTH OF THE SOMME RIVER

London, Oct. 3.—"The night was quiet south of the Ancre," north of the Somme, says an official report issued today.

"South of Loos our troops successfully raided enemy trenches."

WRONG TERMINUS FOR HUDSON'S BAY LINE

Hudson, Attorney-General of Manitoba, Back in Winnipeg After Trip

Winnipeg, Oct. 3.—Hon. A. B. Hudson, attorney general of Manitoba, who returned yesterday from a trip to Nelson over the Hudson's Bay railway route, thinks the Dominion government made a great mistake in establishing the terminus at Nelson instead of at Churchill. It will be necessary to build an island four miles out in the harbor on which to construct the docks. So far as the depth of water at low tide that one can wade out several miles at Nelson. The government will have to spend $20,000,000 to make the harbor practical for ocean vessels. The frost never gets out of the ground more than to a depth of two feet, and the wireless station is embedded in the eternal ice of the north.

While Mr. Hudson was there a 12,000-

ton steamship of the Hudson's Bay Co. arrived with winter supplies from London. This vessel is a great ice-breaker in service at certain seasons in the White Sea. She had to remain eight miles out in the harbor and unload her cargo into small boats.

NEW YORK REAL ESTATE NEARLY $8,000,000,000

New York, Oct. 3.—The tentative tax list of New York city on real estate for 1917, made public to-day, shows a total assessed valuation of nearly $8,000,000,000. The tentative assessment on personal property is placed at $500,000,000. The real property of this city, according to the tax books, is worth $7,833,575,336, which is a net increase of $1,405,837 over the assessment of last year.

The largest personal property valuation is that of the Hettie Green estates, $20,000,000. Mrs. Green was rated as the richest woman in the world. The next largest personal estate is that of Anthony N. Ready, $15,000,000, and then follow those of J. P. Morgan and Charles W. Harkness, $10,000,000 each.

Valuations of important buildings include: Grand Central terminal, $21,500,000; Equitable building, $23,500,000; Pennsylvania terminal, $15,000,000; Metropolitan Life building, $12,500,000; Waldorf-Astoria hotel, $11,500,000; Woolworth building, $3,500,000; Singer building, $7,000,000; Metropolitan opera house, $3,375,000.

ROMAN CATHOLIC WEEKLY AT AN END

Vancouver Publication Did Not Represent Archbishop's
Views on Prohibition

Vancouver, Oct. 3.—The B. C. Western Catholic, until lately the official organ of the Roman Catholic archdiocese of Vancouver, is to cease publication. The paper was founded about 23 years ago by the Oblate Fathers, with the name of The Month. In its early days it was more in the nature of a magazine than a newspaper. For a number of years it was in a state of suspended animation, and about eight years ago was revived by the Oblates under the title of the Western Catholic, which name, to avoid confusion with an American weekly of a similar title, was changed to the present name of the B. C. Western Catholic.

From its inception till a year ago the paper was under the official sanction and management of the successive heads of the archdiocese, but about a year ago Archbishop Casey turned it over to private management while allowing the new owner to continue the use of the title: Official Organ of the Archdiocese of Vancouver. During the prohibition fight, however, the B. C. Western Catholic made a strong editorial attack on the measure, which resulted in the public repudiation of its editorial by the archbishop, who announced that "the editorial page of the current issue of the B. C. Catholic represents the editor's views alone."

Following this action the proprietor was ordered to discontinue the use of the words "Official Organ of the Archdiocese," and also according to the editorial statement in the present issue, "interdicted the sale of the paper at the church doors." This was tantamount to an official condemnation by the spiritual head of the archdiocese, whose strong temperance views were such that, while the paper was directly under his control, no liquor advertisements were permitted to appear in its columns.

ROUMANIAN TROOPS ARE IN BULGARIA

Crossed Danube River South of Bucharest, War Office Reports

Bucharest, Oct. 3.—Roumanian troops have crossed the Danube river and invaded the Bulgarian territory, according to an official communication issued last evening. The river was crossed between Rustchuk and Turtukal, the latter place being where the river leaves Bulgarian territory and flows northeast through Roumania.

The text of the statement follows: "On the northern and northwestern fronts fighting continues. In the mountains of Clushtil and Ierghizel we captured four machine guns and made prisoners of 12 officers and 500 men. "Southern front—Our troops crossed the Danube between Rustchuk and Turtukal and invaded Bulgarian territory. "In Dobrudja we attacked along the entire front and repulsed the enemy on his centre and right flanks."

German Admission.
Berlin, Oct. 3.—An official statement issued yesterday said: "Army group of Field Marshal von Mackensen—South of Bucharest enemy troops have gained a footing on the right bank of the Danube."

REPUBLICAN PARTY CALLED WAR PARTY

Woodrow Wilson's Followers
Urging Americans to Vote for Peace

Portageville, Mo., Oct. 3.—U. S. Senator Reed, of Missouri, in a speech here last night, said that the Republican party is becoming the war party of the United States.

"Roosevelt is in supreme control of the Republican party," he said. "Roosevelt's speech last Saturday at Battle Creek, Mich., is a battlecry. It is a demand for war against Germany which no rational human being can mistake. His words either are the demand of a sincere man who believes our national honor was sacrificed when we failed to go to war and who proposes to wipe out the stain upon our national honor by the stain of blood, or his words are the mere vapors of a demagogue who hopes to gain political advantage by arousing a war spirit with no purpose of actually bringing on a conflict with Germany."

East St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 3.—Vice-President Marshall, speaking here yesterday, said that the issue in the present political campaign is peace or war. "It is to be peace with Wilson," he said, "or war with Hughes."

FAMILY DESERTION CHARGE IN SEATTLE

Seattle, Oct. 3.—James M. Clarke, a garment manufacturer in the Polson building, found Saturday by his wife, Anna Louise Clarke, of Vancouver, B. C., who for two years believed him to be dead, was arrested yesterday by City Detective Ben Cornelison on a charge of family desertion. He was arraigned in Justice of the Peace Brinkner's court and his bond fixed at $750. The Clarkes separated several years ago, according to Mrs. Clarke's story to Deputy Prosecutor Lane Summers, the husband agreeing to pay the wife $112 a month for the support of herself and five children. Two years ago Mrs. Clarke was reported in Vancouver to have died, Mrs. Clarke said, and the report was accepted as true.

While visiting her daughter last week Mrs. Clarke accidentally saw in the city directory a name similar to that of her husband and found him well and apparently prosperous in the Polson building. She and Detective Cornelison reported the facts to Deputy Prosecutor Summers who to-day issued a complaint.

Clarke filed an action for divorce last Friday in which he alleges that by reason of Mrs. Clarke's temper he was compelled to leave his home. They were married in Belfast, Ireland, on Aug. 15, 1892, and are the parents of five children, two of whom are grown. The divorce suit will not stay the criminal prosecution.

IN NEW YORK BULLET STRUCK A PASSENGER

New York, Oct. 3.—Satisfied that there is little further danger of violence in the subway strike, the police department to-day withdrew all policemen from strike duty on the underground lines.

Similar action soon will be taken with regard to the elevated trains. "Only one policeman, instead of two, hereafter will be assigned to each surface car."

Shortly after the announcement three trains were attacked. A bullet fired at an elevated train clipped a piece from the ear of a passenger.

BATTLE CONTINUES AT EAUCOURT L'ABBAYE

British Improved Positions
Elsewhere; Some Ground
Taken by French

London, Oct. 3.—The following official statement was issued last night: "A heavy rain fell on the front early on Monday morning. During the day there has been heavy fighting in and around Eaucourt l'Abbaye, north of the Somme. The enemy succeeded in getting a footing in the buildings."

"During the day we improved our positions southwest of Gueudecourt and north and east of Coreglette. "In the last twenty-four hours in this area we have taken as prisoners 1 officer and 63 men."

"During the operations on Sunday our aeroplanes bombed several points of military importance. An enemy kite balloon was brought down in flames. There were many air fights. In the course of which two enemy machines were destroyed and many others were driven down. We suffered no losses."

French Report.
Paris, Oct. 3.—The following official report was issued last night: "In the course of the day we progressed by grenade fighting to the east of Bouchavesnes, north of the Somme. About 40 prisoners and six machine guns were left in our hands. In the same region a German detachment, caught under our fire in the direction of Epine-de-Malakissie, was dispersed, leaving 50 men on the ground."

"South of the Somme a small German attack on one of our trenches south of Vermandovillers was easily repulsed. "Bad weather has hampered the operations on the whole Somme front. There has been intermittent cannonading on parts of the front."

"Quartermaster Violet brought down his fifth German aeroplane in the Somme region."

Joffre's Praise.

General Joffre, under date of September 29, sent the following to the armies of the north:

"The general commanding-in-chief expresses great satisfaction to the troops who have been fighting unceasingly on the Somme front for nearly three months. By their valor and perseverance they have given blows to the enemy from which he has had difficulty in recovering. "Verdun relieved; twenty-five villages reconquered; more than 35,000 prisoners and 150 cannon taken; successive enemy lines broken through to a depth of 16 kilometres—such are the results already obtained."

"In continuing the contest with the same tenacity, in redoubling their ardor, in union with our brave allies, the valiant armies of the Somme will be assured a glorious part in the decisive victory."

OPINION OF AMERICAN CONSUL AT HAMBURG

What He Thinks About Germany and Trade War
After War

New York, Oct. 3.—Germany will be ready for any trade war her enemies may wage against her after the end of hostilities in the field, according to General Henry H. Morgan, U. S. consul-general at Hamburg, who has just returned from his post. He said that Germany expects the United States to be her closest trader after the war and that the German business men are confident there will then be only the most friendly business relations between the two nations.

"Germany realizes that her trade with the nations of the entente will be subject to great restrictions," he said. "Regardless of feelings that may have been engendered by the war, Germany expects cordial trade relations with the United States."

He said Germany had sent little money out of the country for war expenses as compared with what the allies had sent to America, and that the German store of gold will have a tendency to prevent any crippling of her ability to meet Britain in a struggle for world trade.

GERMANS MAKE WAR ON NORWEGIAN SHIPPING

London, Oct. 3.—The steamers Hafnia and Hekla, both Norwegian, have been sunk by a German submarine, according to a Reuter dispatch from Vadso, Norway. The crews were landed in their own boats, which were towed by the submarine.

The Hafnia was of 525 tons. Three Norwegian steamships sailing under the name of Hekla—of 350 tons, 2,375 tons and 524 tons—are listed.

Jews and the War.

New York, Oct. 3.—The National Workmen's Committee on Jewish Rights will hold a meeting in this city to-morrow to consider measures recommended by Rt. Hon. Herbert Samuel, home secretary for Great Britain, which, according to the committee, would result in the deportation of all Russian and Roumanian refugees unless they joined the British army. The condition of Jews in all the belligerent countries also will be discussed. The committee reports approximately 500,000 Jewish workmen throughout the United States.

ROGERS'S TRICK AT WINNIPEG INQUIRY

Attacked Judge to Divert Attention From Matters Under Investigation

Toronto, Oct. 3.—"Sidestepping as an Art" is the caption of an editorial in the Toronto Star, which says:

"Sometimes we have been inclined to regard the Machiavellian craft of the Hon. Robert Rogers as a myth, but there may be something in it. At Winnipeg he managed to draw a red herring across the trail with a skill that suggests a nimble mind."

"The attention of the people of Winnipeg is diverted now from the vulgar, brutal charges of graft, to the academic question whether a judge ought to be appointed to inquire into graft, and whether he ought to be paid."

"Ought judges to be paid when they inquire into graft? Ought editors to be fined and imprisoned when they criticize judges who are inquiring into graft? Such are the subjects which have displaced the question of what graft there was and whether Mr. Rogers had any part therein."

EYE OF ENGLISH GIRL FOR SOLDIER OF FRANCE

Paris, Oct. 3.—A young English girl has written to Dr. Rochon Duvalneaud offering to give one of her eyes to a soldier who has lost his sight serving France. The girl, who lives in North Shields, had read a recent statement by Dr. Duvalneaud, one of the most famous oculists in France, that it was possible to save the sight of a man wounded in the eye by grafting a portion of the cornea of another person. In her letter she says: "If you believe there is one chance of success in a million I will give you one of my eyes for a soldier who has lost his sight serving France. I would prefer to give my eye to one to whom it would be especially useful, such as an inventor or an officer of great value."

Petrograd, Oct. 3.—Jews will enjoy greater educational advantages in Russia in the future. A series of high schools and technical schools exclusively for Jewish students is to be established by the government and greater freedom will be accorded with respect to their entry into the universities.

LORD BRYCE FAVORS LEAGUE FOR PEACE

be necessary. I ask your help to bring the matter before the people and to show them how much we and every nation have to gain by removing the terror and the danger of war, which so long has hung like a black cloak over Europe. The churches could do no more truly Christian work."

"Let not this war have been fought in vain. Let us search for and try to put into practice some scheme for reducing, and if possible, at last for ending, this oldest and most terrible scourge of mankind."

Lord Bryce said his country was virtually unanimous in holding that the war must be pursued to victory so complete as to open the passage of an enduring peace, and added: "On the terms of that treaty the people will insist, and ought to insist, on expressing their opinion and the churches must do their part in helping to form it."

He declared that the precepts of Christianity coincide with those of political wisdom and that the churches should work for national unity and good feeling between the classes.

Spirit of Hatred.

"Let us avoid, let us repress the spirit of hatred," he said. "We are justly indignant at the war the enemy powers have waged. We trust that our victory will warn the world that such methods must never be resorted to again and that those guilty of them will be punished. But it is wise to talk of banning a whole people for all time to come? The German people are under a harsh and tyrannical rule, which not only has deceived and misled them, but alienates any protest—and there are those who wish to protest—against its crimes. Some day we hope they will overthrow it when they have learned the truth."

"To indulge in revenge will be to sow the seeds of future wars. Nations can not hate one another forever, and the sooner they cease to do so the better for all of them. We must take all proper steps to defend ourselves from any dangers that might arise if after the war the enemy countries were to resume an insidious hostility. That is at present no more than a possibility which may never arise."

Trade War.

"But the talk we now hear about starting after peace has been concluded, a new war of trade to follow the war of arms has immense capacities for mischief. Such a trade war would prolong and embitter afresh those hatreds that ought to be allowed to die, and it assumes a continuance of those very things from which we expect our victory to deliver us once for all."

"Our main purposes will have failed if we do not secure a durable peace. To prolong hatreds would increase suspicion, and would lead in time to a resurgence of those very calamities from which we are suffering. If severe terms have to be imposed, let that be done only so far as is necessary for securing future peace, not in a vindictive spirit, which in perpetuating hatreds would end by rekindling the flames of war."

Lord Bryce advocated that the principles of nationality be respected as far as possible, especially in the cases of Poland, the southern Slavs, Transylvania and Armenia.

COSTS MUCH MORE TO PUBLISH NEWSPAPER

Western Publishers at Meeting in Winnipeg Decide Change Inevitable

Winnipeg, Oct. 3.—A change in the newspaper publishing methods in Canada on account of the enormous increase in the cost of production was pointed out as inevitable by E. W. Backus, president of the Fort Francis Paper & Pulp Company, in an address he delivered yesterday at the annual meeting here of the Western Associated Press, Ltd., the co-operative news gathering and distributing organization of western Canada. Publishers from points throughout the west were present.

Mr. Backus gave the reasons for the shortage of news print, which is the trade name for the paper used for newspapers, and the price increase. Mill labor was scarce and wages high; materials entering into the manufacture of news print had gone up several hundred per cent.; the advertising patronage of the large American dailies had been growing fast, consequently their consumption of news print was constantly increasing. For the latter cause the mills were unable to gather a reserve supply. Each year the paper manufacturers were being forced to go farther from their mills for their wood.

Too much reading was being given for the amount of advertising carried. Publishers would be forced to change their tactics. Those who would not agree to do so would find themselves confronted by a serious proposition. It was not a case of doing what they would like to do, but what they would be forced to do. Mr. Backus cited instances of several large American dailies that were paying over 300 per cent. more for their news print supply to-day than they were a year ago. Their profits had not only been wiped away, but they now were finding themselves facing a deficit. The only alternative, he thought, was strict economy. This was imperative if the newspapers were to remain in business.

Drastic Steps.
The publishers were unanimous in declaring that the situation was very grave, and united in agreeing that drastic steps must be taken to meet the conditions with which they are faced. Everything entering into the manufacture of a newspaper, it was pointed out, has risen greatly in price—wages, cost of metal, ink, etc. Even the small item of twine exacted a heavy toll from the paper having any circulation worth while.
It was the general opinion that extra revenue would have to be secured from some source. The burden could not be placed wholly on the advertisers; the reader must bear a share. The subscription price of nearly every newspaper was too low. Newspapers were the only commodity selling below cost and publishers, if they desired to see their newspapers continue in existence, would have to adopt elementary business laws in the operation of their plants.

A committee was appointed to represent the western publishers at a meeting to be held at Toronto next Friday in this connection under the auspices of the Canadian Press Association.

Directors.

The following were elected directors of the Western Associated Press for the ensuing year: E. B. Mackay, Port Arthur News; D. Smith, Fort William Times-Journal; E. H. Macklin, J. W. JAPAN'S DESIRES REGARDING CHINA

Diplomats in Tokio Believe She Wishes to Consolidate Position

Tokio, Oct. 3.—In connection with the pending negotiations with China over the Chia Tung incident, the impression exists in diplomatic circles here that Japan merely desires at this time to consolidate the position and influence she already has obtained in China. This would take the form of obtaining certain police rights in South Manchuria and Eastern Inner Mongolia which Japan regards as special Japanese zones of influence. It also might include the right to secure the appointment of Japanese advisers for these districts.
It is understood that Mr. Guthrie, the American ambassador, has had a series of conferences recently with Viscount Ishii, minister for foreign affairs, and it is believed that they concerned more or less informal inquiries regarding the demands on China as well as the alliance with Russia. The report persists in Tokyo that the alliance contains secret clauses and that there is anything to affect their interests. Japan has officially assured the United States government that the alliance in no way affects the status quo of China. Neutralists have been assured that equality of opportunity will exist as in the past.

American here point out that the fact that Great Britain and France declare they are familiar with the treaty in its entirety and that it meets with their approval as in the nature of a guarantee for the United States, because the interests of those countries in China are huge, and doubtless will be developed after the present war.

It is believed here that the Far East will take on added importance after the war, and it is thought likely that among other things Great Britain will augment her fleet in Oriental waters.
A loan by Japan in conjunction with the entente powers seems probable. It is reported here that Kinichi Kawakami, a well known financier, will be appointed financial adviser to the Chinese government upon the recommendation of Baron Hayashi, Japan's new minister to Peking. The engagement is said to be connected with the proposed loan to China. Of even greater importance, according to the Japanese, is the recent appointment of Nobuzumi Aoki, of the Japanese army, to the post of military adviser to the Chinese government. All these developments are interpreted as steps by Japan toward the spread of her friendly influence in China, which, according to Japanese doctrine, should continue until it becomes predominant as compared with that of other powers.

AMERICAN MONEY FOR RAILROAD IN CHINA

Washington, Oct. 3.—The finding of 2,000 miles of new railroads in China, reported in dispatches from Peking by the American International Corporation, is not believed by officials here to conflict with the new Japanese-Chinese treaty. Japanese concessions secured under the new treaty do not extend to the territory through which the railroad is to be built, according to state department information. The department had heard unofficially of the project, but understood it contemplated the building of 1,000 miles.

ACROSS THE DANUBE.

The Berlin announcement yesterday that Roumanian troops had gained a foothold in Bulgaria, between Rutchuk and Turtukal, focuses attention upon an aspect of the Balkan campaign which may have interesting developments. Rutchuk is an important Bulgarian city on the right bank of the Danube, about fifty miles south of Bucharest, the capital of Roumania. It is also a bridgehead which, like Giurgevo on the Roumanian side, is strongly guarded. A road runs from it northeasterly down the valley of the Danube to Turtukal and Silistria. In the Dobrudja, along which, no doubt, a part of von Mackensen's army moved in their advance against those two places. By crossing the Danube between Rutchuk and Turtukal, the Roumanians must have struck their enemy's line of communications. Today a dispatch from Rome says von Mackensen has ordered the evacuation of both Turtukal and Silistria. If this report be correct, the field marshal's order may be regarded as the sequel to the Roumanian incursion across the Danube.

Sofia says the Roumanian force which crossed the river consists of two battalions conveyed in boats, and that steps will be taken to dislodge it. It is hardly likely, however, that the Roumanians would send such a small number of troops on so important a mission, for in the face of a strong attack its position would be extremely perilous. Nor would von Mackensen evacuate Turtukal and Silistria in consequence of a raid by several thousand hostile troops. It is highly probable that the force which crossed the Danube was the vanguard of a much more formidable army, or else a feint to cover a crossing elsewhere. Moreover, we should not be surprised if this incident turned out to be merely a preliminary stage of the real invasion of Bulgaria from the north which the world has been expecting ever since Roumania entered the war. In that event we should hear before long that the Roumanians or Russians had crossed the Danube at several other points on both sides of Rutchuk.

A PARALLEL.

Military commentators find in the campaign in France and Flanders something of a parallel with the operations which resulted in the liberation of Germany and the downfall of Napoleon a little more than a century ago. After his disastrous adventure in Russia, the French emperor, rallying his forces, determined to maintain at all costs his grip upon Germany, which he had held without relaxing since the battle of Jena. In this he was actuated by substantial considerations of policy. He realized that if the oncoming Russians forced him back upon the Rhine, Austria, which had assumed a position of doubtful neutrality, would fall into the arms of the enemy and in all probability Bavaria and Saxony would abandon him. To keep Austria neutral and to retain the allegiance of the south German states, therefore, he decided to meet the Russian wave on the borders of Germany.

He first tried to hold the Vistula line in Poland and East Prussia and failed. The Russian army he had driven to Moscow, and which had recently followed him back, had now become an enormous force with the czar at its head. Driven from the Vistula, Napoleon finally determined to stand behind the Elbe. Meanwhile Prussia had been raised to her feet by Russia and contributed an army to the fight for her freedom. Notwithstanding the great superiority of the hostile combination in numbers, the French emperor was able to hold the Elbe for six weeks, though at a heavy cost. When that line had to be abandoned, Austria joined the coalition, Bavaria seceded, and his failure to gain a decision at the battle of Leipzig forced him to retire behind the Rhine.

But he had lost too heavily in his attempt to hold Germany to present an impregnable front along the Rhine. His military judgment no doubt had advised him to evacuate the whole of Germany and renew his armies behind the Rhine as soon as he left Russian soil, for he must have realized that Russia was bent upon his destruction. Besides, this would have enabled him to deal more forcibly with Wellington, who was knocking at the gates of the Pyrenees. But political reasons, the necessity of keeping Austria neutral and retaining his ascendancy over other states, forced him to suffer staggering losses on the Vistula, the Oder and the Elbe, and when the allies with three armies attacked the line on the Rhine they had no difficulty in forcing it and carrying the war into France and Belgium. He was outnumbered, outgunned and outwitted.

Germany is holding her present line in the west for political reasons at a sacrifice of military advantage. Apart from the effect upon public sentiment at home, she hoped to influence neutrals and to hold enough of France and Belgium to afford a basis for bargaining in peace negotiations as well as justification to the German people of the warlike policy of the Hohenzollern dynasty. But the maintenance of her line on the Aisne, the Somme and the Yser has cost her millions of her best fighting men and an enormous wastage of artillery and supplies. It has weakened her power of manoeuvre until in this respect she has become harmless. She tried to force a decision at Verdun as Napoleon did at Leipzig. Now her front is being pushed back and before long she will have to abandon her present line. Napoleon made his strongest fight along the Elbe. After that line was forced he was doomed. He became weaker as he retreated and his defence of the Rhine collapsed with the first few blows. Will history repeat itself in the present war?

HUNS' LAST HOPE.

Hun leaders are in a maze. They profess that they cannot understand the strategy of the allies. But understanding will not fall them in due time. There is one thing, however, the Hun newspapers are beginning to perceive. It is that Germany is beaten. They frankly confess that all dreams of conquest, of a more conspicuous place in the sun, must be abandoned. They admit there is nothing for the All-Highest to do but strive for peace on the best terms obtainable. Granting that, then comes the rub. To obtain peace, Britain must be brought to terms. She is at present the insurmountable obstacle. If the British fleet could be attacked successfully the chief barrier could be surmounted. That is admittedly but a dream. It could not be accomplished in thirty years, they say. But there is still a gleam of hope, a silver lining to the dark cloud. It is the Zeppelins, which may frighten Britons into submission. The Leipzig Neuesten Nachrichten, describing the Zeppelins as the "messengers of German retaliation," refers to the raids of September 23-24, saying that this time even the British authorities who drew up the official report lacked the courage to lie in the face of the world and were obliged to admit that many persons were killed.

News will soon trickle out that whole districts in London were destroyed, numerous munition factories burned down, various ships and docks blown to pieces, says the Leipzig paper, which admits that the English defences have improved, making the raids more dangerous to the German aeronautes. The paper adds:

"This does not deter our heroes from undertaking intrepidly the destruction spreading flights. Thousands of their comrades are shedding their blood daily in the Somme region, and the crews of the airships desire no more kind fate, for all know they have the most effective means of piercing England's heart, and peace will be within reach when the satiated shopkeepers on the Thames no longer feel safe in their homes and fear drives the blood from their cheeks."

THE CAUSE OF HIS WRATH.

Before leaving Winnipeg after his outbreak at the session of the Galt inquiry in which he was a witness, Hon. Robert Rogers gave out for publication a statement in which he made the following reference to the judge who is conducting the investigation:

"I can only add that I apologize to the citizens of Manitoba for having made a recommendation that has resulted in placing upon the bench of this province a man who is apparently so incapable of grasping and appreciating the high responsibilities and dignities that properly attach themselves to the position of judge of the king's bench."

Considering the source from which this flowed it can mean nothing else than that Mr. Rogers considered himself entitled to special treatment from a judge he was instrumental in having appointed. The Minister of Public Works, of course, has no real objection to judges acting as commissioners and accepting remuneration for their services, which has been the practice throughout Canada for years. His attack on the commissioner on that ground was mere fastidious. What Mr. Rogers really objects to is the investigation of a dubious transaction in which he was involved.

Apparently, according to his theory, Mr. Justice Galt, having been appointed to the bench on his recommendation, had no right to investigate him or his machine. Does Mr. Rogers regard Mr. Justice Haggart, who liberated the Telegram editor and reporters on a habeas corpus application, as carrying a similar obligation to subordinate his duties as judge to the necessities of the politician upon whose recommendation he was appointed? If he does we should hope he is as greatly mistaken as he was in the case of Mr. Justice Galt. Mr. Justice Haggart was formerly member for Winnipeg in the Dominion House of Commons. He was a prominent officer in the Rogers political camp. He retired in 1911 in favor of Mr. Rogers when that politician unhappily was called to a federal portfolio and was rewarded by an appointment to the bench.

It is well understood, too, that resentment over being investigated by a judge whom he had recommended for the bench was not the only basis of Mr. Rogers's exhibition. His attack on the judge was altogether too deliberate for that view. His story of the power-house contract was painfully weak and would not have imposed upon a schoolboy. He found it desirable, therefore, to create a diversion by assailing the judge and anticipating his finding. His red-herring will not help him. It is too high. It has been dead too long. Mr. Rogers belongs to the class of politicians whom the people of Canada are determined to drive into obscurity. His attack upon Mr. Justice Galt will impress public opinion about as favorably as the trade of a prisoner in the dock against the judge who is trying him would impress a jury.

A Chicago newspaper reproduces a cartoon depicting the war in Europe purely as an affair of kings. The underlying theory of this attitude is that the war is simply a matter between two decadent civilizations, a calamity which would be impossible in the case of the enlightened country in which the cartoonist lives, because it has no king. France is conveniently left out of the picture. She probably is a puzzle to the artist and others who share his view. A republic not too proud to fight evidently strikes them as an anomaly. That this is not a king's war as far as the allies are concerned is further shown by the fact that one of the chief beneficiaries of their enormous sacrifices of blood and treasure is the United States, which Germany intended finally to bring within the orbit of her sword and which she calculated would be easily overcome. Nothing has happened in the last three years to prove that this calculation was unsound. It is fortunate for the United States, indeed, that the allied nations in Europe thought their freedom and security were worth fighting for.

The London Daily Mail reassures those Canadian newspapers which expressed apprehension over the possibility of the Canadian forces at the front being placed under the command of Sir Sam Hughes. The London newspaper says this is not likely to happen, as no more political appointments to important commands will be tolerated. This is tough on Sir Sam Hughes, who told Kitchener, Joffre, Robertson and Haig all about the Ypres salient, of which, of course, they knew nothing. A political general, indeed! But wait, just wait; they will find themselves compelled to recognize real military genius yet.

The Vancouver World is a "Holy Willie" among the newspapers of the province. In the late provincial election contest, when if ever in the history of our affairs the issue between right and wrong was clearly defined, our contemporary had no opinion to offer for the guidance of the electors. It was so "unco guid," so virtuously "independent," that it stood afar off in righteous contemplation of the struggle for the good government of the province. Yet as opportunity offers it never fails to get in a sly thrust in favor of that outcast from his own province, the Hon. Bob Rogers.

Sir Sam Hughes is not to be given a command in France. From the remarks of a British newspaper it is evident that our peripatetic Minister of Militia strove to get such an appointment, and doubtless his quest was favored by his cabinet colleagues at Ottawa, and we surmise that they will be disappointed with the result. Now they will have to carry Sir Sam, and he is no light burden.

The New York Sun says there is going to be a great war of tariffs after the European conflict is over; and urges the United States to be prepared. That is the kind of war in which Americans never have been "too proud to fight," and if the allied powers have any idea of holding their tariffs higher than the United States tariff has been for more years than we can remember they will have to "hit the high spots."

The following from the Montreal Star probably is as applicable to the case of Victoria as any other city in Canada: "Many a name which has appeared almost daily in the sporting pages of Canadian newspapers has been printed in the casualty lists within the past few months. Canadian sportsmen have played up, and played the game."

A recent estimate fixes Russia's population at 182,000,000, an increase of 54,000,000 in the last twenty years. What a fine, strapping, healthy neighbor Germany has, to be sure. Those figures show why Germany will try to cling to the Vistula if she has to back up to the Rhine in the west.

The United States is making a great deal of money out of this war. After the struggle is over she will lose most of it through the thousands of her tourists who will cross the ocean to view the various battlefields. And there will be no disposition to undercharge them, either.

Nice time for an eastern divine to tell us that there is no material hell. But we are going to cling to the old belief at last until the Kaiser and his staff of torturers and murderers have "done time" in "the place prepared for them," Tophet.

Bulgaria will now understand the meaning of the phrase "playing two ends against the middle."

PRESIDENT WILSON SPEAKS PLAINLY.

From Address Accepting Presidential Nomination.
The seas were not broad enough to keep the infection of the conflict out of our own politics. The passions and intrigues of certain active groups and combinations of men among us who were born under foreign flags injected the poison of disloyalty into our own most critical affairs, laid violent hands upon many of our industries, and subjected us to the same divisions of sentiment and purpose in which America was condemned and forgotten. It is part of the business of this year of reckoning and settlement to speak plainly and act with unmistakable purpose in rebuke of these things, in order that they may be forever hereafter impossible. I am the candidate of a party, but I am above all things else an American citizen. I neither seek the favor nor fear the displeasure of that small alien element among us which puts loyalty to any foreign power before loyalty to the United States.

Are Closed; Assets
Were Seized

Washington, Oct. 3.—Strong protest has been made to the state department by the British and French embassies against the action of the Carranza government in Mexico in seizing the assets of British and French banking institutions in the Mexican capital.

These banks are closed as a result of Carranza's decrees and it is declared that the interests of British and French stockholders has been seriously affected.

So far the state department has given no indication of what it was doing, but it is believed that the protests will be transmitted first to the American members of the joint commission now in session at Atlantic City to be drawn to the attention of their Mexican colleagues.

TO TEACH "SAFETY FIRST"

Important Scheme of Street Railway Company Endorsed by Municipal Inspector.

All the street railway companies in large cities are devoting much time and thought to the elimination of "preventable" accidents and some very comprehensive schemes are being followed to obtain this end.

With the consent of the various educational authorities, calendars with a "safety first" motto for every month, scribbles and blotting pads with illustrations, showing how easily accidents happen, are distributed free in the schools. "Safety First" leagues also are formed among school children.

All this may not be necessary in Victoria, but in spite of modern safety appliances—air brakes, gates, window-guards, etc., the human element can never be eliminated.

The B. C. Electric Railway Co., in the issue of the Buzzer for Friday next, has endeavored to show in a pleasant and instructive manner how people generally, and school children in particular, may save themselves from being the victim of an accident that may be classified as "preventable."

Municipal Inspector Paul has been consulted, and an outline of the subject matter of the Buzzer has been submitted to him. Mr. Paul has lent his hearty support to the project, and it is a source of considerable gratification to the Street Railway company, to know that it has the sympathy of the educational authorities in the promotion of the "safety first" idea among the school children of Victoria.

SOLDIERS DUE HERE

Thirteen Men Who Have Seen Active Service Arriving on Thursday.

Thirteen soldiers who have seen active service will arrive in Victoria on Thursday afternoon in charge of Sgt. J. Williams of Vancouver. The men are Pte. E. Bond, of Cascade; Pte. N. Binusick; of Fernie; Pte. G. Abbott; of Nelson; Pte. W. Taylor, of New Westminster; Pte. L. Pusey and Gnr. R. Daft, of Victoria; and Ptes. D. Thomas, N. MacDonald, R. Singlehurst, G. Price, C. Stewart, and A. Haselton, of Vancouver.

Some of the men who arrived in Canada with the same party have been given leave to go direct to their homes. They are Pte. C. Baird, of Quenest; Pte. H. Eason, of Fernie; Sgt. F. Harwood, of Vancouver; and Ptes. E. King and Hart, of Vancouver.

Other men who are on their way West are Pte. Cater, of Vancouver, who will arrive here on October 7, and Cpl. A. Cox, of Vancouver, who has been given seven days' leave at Kenora. Cpl. Feather is leaving Quebec tomorrow and should arrive here in the early part of next week.

City Police Court.—A motor case was before Magistrate Jay this morning, in which the usual fine of $10 was imposed for speeding. There was also one case of drunkenness.

Will Not Sell Iron Work.—The city council has declined to send the iron gratings and bars from the old jail to the city blacksmith's shop, because it appears that a form of uselessness may be found for them in the new jail later.

Action for Work Done.—In county court to-day the hearing of the action of Watty John Quinn (Chinese) was begun and adjourned to a later date. The action arises out of a contract for work and the amount due is disputed. W. C. Moreau is for the plaintiff and S. T. Hankey for the defendant.

Taxation of Costs.—Some time was taken up in county court chambers to-day with the hearing of objection on behalf of the B. C. Electric Railway Company to the taxed bill of costs in the recently-heard action of Moss v. B. C. Electric, in which a jury gave the plaintiff damages and costs for the injuries caused to himself and his motor car by being struck by a street car.

Mechanic Lien Cases.—There are a number of cases in county court arising out of the construction of the Finch block, Yates street, in which mechanics' liens and other causes of action are mingled. Several applications were made to Judge Lampman this morning for addition of defendants and for the consolidation of the actions, some of which have been pending for nearly two years. The matter of consolidation was allowed to stand until Friday. Counsel engaged were Frank Higgins, F. J. Stacpole, K. C., R. C. Lowe, H. B. Robertson, J. P. Walls, D. S. Tait and others.

Prisoners of War Fund.—An open meeting will be held at the Alexandra Club on Friday morning at 11 o'clock for the purpose of considering the best means of affording those interested with an opportunity of subscribing to the Dukes of Cornwall's "Prisoners of War Fund." Her royal highness, after repeatedly refusing to accept any token of esteem from the women of Canada at the present time, has been induced to accept this contribution to her Prisoners of War fund, and it is hoped that there may be a ready response to this expression of esteem together with an expression of sympathy for the prisoners of war.

OPENING SESSION OF CITY NIGHT SCHOOL

Some Classes Will Require Increased Numbers to Warrant Existence

The continuation classes at the Victoria High school opened last evening, and with the subjects that commence to-night the trustees will be able to judge by to-morrow how the situation exists, and whether the registrations are to be as satisfactory as had been hoped for. Director Blinn estimates the attendance at about 250, but points out that with so many of the subjects not yet inaugurated any attempt to gauge the support accorded to the classes would be vain as yet.

To welcome the pupils were Chairman George Jay, of the school board; Municipal Inspector Paul, and the director of technical education for the province, John Kyle. Mr. Kyle's enthusiasm for these evening classes is well known and he has been one of the most encouraging aids to inauguration of the course.

The commercial subjects, the gasoline class and one or two others filled up remarkably well last evening, but there was a shortage in some which threatens their continuation, unless more students appear. The board will insist this year on a minimum average attendance of ten.

The art students were to have begun last evening. However, Miss Wyldie will receive them to-morrow evening at the High school.

The results were disappointing in the building trades course, and in lettering and show card writing last evening, and if the registration does not reach the necessary ten, the courses will have to be combined in order to come within the regulations.

In French it is necessary to have a larger attendance of advanced students, as most of those attending are not ready to do the work of the eight or nine remaining from last year, and if two or three more are forthcoming, the French classes will be divided. Anticipating this, the advanced class is scheduled to meet to-morrow.

One very valuable course is that to be devoted to civics and economics. It is intended primarily for the oral expression of ideas on public questions and a study of the principles of government, taxation, the party system, the judicial system, state ownership, social conditions, capital and labor, laws of supply and demand, co-operation and business organization, and parliamentary procedure. In addition to the above an historical survey will be made of the political and economic progress of past civilizations.

The management is particularly anxious that the public should understand that for the women of Victoria, who cannot be out at night from household calls, a special course of day classes has been arranged at domestic science centres.

These will take place on Monday, from two to four o'clock, in cookery at Victoria West, and at Victoria West, Quadra street and Margaret Jenkins schools, on Tuesdays for dressmaking. Applications for these classes must be made at the school board office, and will not be started till next week.

Inspector Paul and Director Blinn both express themselves well satisfied with the first night, but look for larger attendances later. Little more than registration will be attempted before to-morrow.

place the central association in shape for the federal campaign.

The election of the president of the central body, F. A. Pauline, as member of the legislature for the district, vacates the office, and it became necessary to fill it, this being the chief business before the meeting.

An enthusiastic gathering of Liberals was present and the retiring receive of the municipality, George McGregor, was unanimously elected to fill the chair. P. W. Dempster was chosen vice-president.

The duties of secretary and treasurer, which heretofore have been undertaken by S. McClure, were transferred to the Burnside district association, George Vallance, whose address is P. O. Box 922, Victoria.

Some vacancies on the executive committee were filled, and the organization as it stands now is thoroughly representative of the whole of the provincial constituency.

MacMillan, who recently returned from a tour of the world as timber-trade commissioner for Canada, who will read a paper on the "Necessity of International Co-operation; Forest and Lumber Problems—Canada and the United States Cannot Solve Independently;" and others. The convention will comprise the Western Forestry and Conservation Association with state and federal and British Columbia forest interests, and will meet at Portland, Oregon, October 23 and 25. The Pacific Logging Congress will meet at the same place on the two subsequent days.

AT THE THEATRES

DOMINION THEATRE.

"Man and His Soul," a powerful five act Metro feature, in which Francis X. Bushman, the crowned king of motion pictures, and Beverly Bayne, the queen of the silent drama, appear in the stellar roles, is now being shown at the Dominion. This feature, which is said to be the best work Mr. Bushman and Miss Bayne have ever done together, was produced by the Quality Pictures Corporation, for the Metro programme. A strong supporting cast is seen with the two stars, including Edward Brennan, Grace Valentine, Charles H. Prince, John Davidson, Helen Dunbar and other prominent stage and screen artists.

THE ROYAL VICTORIA.

Dixie Compton, who plays the exceptionally hard part of Valerie Gerdy in the William Fox latest release, "The Family Saint," directed by Wm. S. Davis, which is the attraction at the Royal Victoria again to-day and to-morrow, was a musical comedy star for many seasons before she went into pictures. Miss Compton played the leads in such big successes as Frank Danahy's "Belle of Brittany," Sam Bernard's "The Camp from Milwaukee," and other Broadway productions. Miss Compton has been in motion picture work and declares that once in a while she misses the plaudits of the multitude when appearing before the footlights, yet she is in love with picture work and greatly impressed with its artistic side.

During her early days in motion picture work, Miss Compton had an interesting experience. A houseboat was sent from Mariner's Harbor, Staten Island, to a port on the coast of North Carolina. This boat carried 16 motion picture actors and actresses. It had no power, but three sails were used. The trip took three months, during which time the party just escaped a hurricane. They got the tail end of the storm and one night were battered about so badly that Miss Compton and two of her girl friends had to be lashed to the mast. That the houseboat was not capsized and sunk, was merely an act of Providence.

The programme also includes a good comedy and a weekly gazette.

VARIETY THEATRE.

"Do you believe in fairies? When Maudie Adams asked that question at the end of her marvelous performance in "Peter Pan" every man, woman and child in the theatre invariably joined in the chorus of affirmatives. Now Marguerite Clark, herself the incarnation of the elf spirit, is being starred by The Famous Players Film Company in its delightful fairy tale, "Little Lady Eileen," which is the attraction at the Variety theatre this week. And if, at the end of the performance, little Miss Clark were to step out of the screen upon the stage and ask the audience whether they too believe in fairies, there is little room for doubt that they would unanimously shout "Yes!"

Strangely enough, it is only the little Lady Eileen herself who believes in the fairies at the beginning of the story. The others about her are entirely too practical to take any stock in such nonsense. But after seeing the people of elfland lead the trusting little Irish lassie to her true lover and kill the impostor who attempted to get possession of her fortune, then there can be no shadow of a doubt in any mind that it is the fairies who reward the faith in them by their good work.

Of course, if one were prosaic, one could talk at great length of the miracles which director J. Searle Dawley—the real king of the fairies in this picture—has wrought in introducing his weird little folk and in creating many illusions, exquisite scenes and real thrills. But that would bring the production into the realm of the commonplace, for that is what this "Famous Players" director always does.

In support of Miss Clark there appear such well-known players as Maggie Halloway Fisher, Vernon Steele, John L. Shine, Harry Lee, and Russell Bassett.

CHINESE WIZARDS STAR

Gorgeous and Sensational Production Staged by Long Tack Sam and Company at Pantages.

In an act replete with sensational features, Long Tack Sam and his company of versatile performers easily takes first place in a particularly high class bill presented this week at Pantages theatre. Scarcely anything worth while in modern vaudeville was overlooked by Long Tack Sam when he organized this clever aggregation of unyielding Celestials.

Long Tack Sam himself is a comedian of the first order and those who are under the impression that the Chinese lack humor have only to sit through a performance to be convinced to the contrary. Furthermore he is an artist in many lines of entertaining effort. The tricks of the average magician appear particularly simple when compared with those of this Chinese wizard. As a contortionist he is a star. In the impersonation of a London Johnny he is a scream. With his manifold talents, Long Tack Sam makes an instantaneous hit. What he, or members of his large company, cannot do, is apparently not worth attempting. They excel in magic stunts, singing, dancing, acrobatics, juggling and good comedy. Gorgeous Oriental trappings are a feature of the production and costly Mandarin costumes are worn by the performers.

Another highly entertaining turn is presented by Keno & Green, a well balanced team. "All life and Action," as it is programmed, it certainly is. There can never be a dull moment while Joe Keno and Rustie Green are prancing before the footlights. They are an entertaining pair and work to gether faultlessly. Dancing, patter and song is served up in approved style and they give the best that is in them. Moreover, they never seem to get tired and respond to repeated recalls until they are breathless. Both are clever exponents of the Cake Walk and wind up a sparkling act with an exhibition of this popular dance.

Doolley & Nelson are a couple of sterling comedians, who are applause getters right from the outset. This turn is brim full of ginger and the principals have developed a habit of keeping everybody in a rollicking mood.

Long Tack Sam himself is a comedian of the first order and those who are under the impression that the Chinese lack humor have only to sit through a performance to be convinced to the contrary. Furthermore he is an artist in many lines of entertaining effort.

The tricks of the average magician appear particularly simple when compared with those of this Chinese wizard. As a contortionist he is a star. In the impersonation of a London Johnny he is a scream. With his manifold talents, Long Tack Sam makes an instantaneous hit. What he, or members of his large company, cannot do, is apparently not worth attempting. They excel in magic stunts, singing, dancing, acrobatics, juggling and good comedy.

Gorgeous Oriental trappings are a feature of the production and costly Mandarin costumes are worn by the performers.

Another highly entertaining turn is presented by Keno & Green, a well balanced team. "All life and Action," as it is programmed, it certainly is. There can never be a dull moment while Joe Keno and Rustie Green are prancing before the footlights. They are an entertaining pair and work to

SIR HENRI'S PORTRAIT

There has come into the possession of the province, through the thoughtful generosity of the late Mrs. J. D. Pemberton, a magnificent portrait in oils of the late Hon. Sir Henri Joly de Lotbiniere, who was lieutenant governor of British Columbia from June, 1900, to May, 1906.

The artist is Miss Sophie Pemberton, now the wife of Rev. A. J. Beanlands, a former rector of Christ Church cathedral. She painted the portrait during Sir Henri's residence in this city, and it has since hung in her mother's home, "Gonzales." It is thus not only a remembrance of the most popular governor the province has had, but it is an excellent example from the brush of a native Victorian, daughter of pioneers of the city and province.

The portrait is practically life-size, is worthy of its object in pose and likeness, and has caught the courtly grace and dignified bearing of the grand seigneur of la nouvelle France, which were so typified in him. The only condition made by the donor in her will was that the picture should be placed in a prominent position in the parliament buildings. This will be done, and the portrait will occupy an honor place among the gallery of men who have helped to make the province.

FORMAL OPENING OF HOME PRODUCT FAIR

Dr. S. F. Tolmie Declares Splendid Exhibition to Be in Full Swing

AFFORDS DEMONSTRATION OF MANUFACTURING POWER

F. A. Pauline, M. P. P., on Need for Development of Industries

There was a large gathering of citizens at the informal opening ceremonies with which the home products fair began yesterday afternoon. The addresses were made from the mezzanine gallery of the ground floor of the Hudson's Bay Company's building, and were listened to by the crowd of sightseers.

Alderman Porter acted as chairman of the proceedings in his capacity of president of the Victoria and Island Development Association.

F. A. Pauline, M. P. P., for Saanich, was the first speaker, and in the course of his remarks he said:

"It is a great pleasure to me to be here to-day at the opening of this excellent fair. It is important to us all as showing to a large degree the activities of the industrial portion of our city. The efforts of the association over which Alderman Porter has the privilege of presiding are directed on two lines; one, to put before the world the residential advantages of the city of Victoria, the other, the opportunities that exist in this city for creating industries. This exhibition to-day has primarily as the reason for its existence the object of stimulating the interest of the citizens of Victoria in the industries we have, to draw their attention to what they are capable of producing for you, and to prove to you that in many respects and to a large extent what they do produce is equal in most respects to what you can buy outside and in many respects superior. (Applause.)

"There is one feature that comes to my mind as bearing on this exhibition. We do succeed in bringing many people here to reside, because they find that British Columbia is a whole and Victoria in particular is such a splendid place in which to make a home. They naturally bring the younger members of their families with them, and these, as they grow up, must have something to do. If we are to keep them here we must encourage industrial activities. During the past twenty or twenty-five years many thousands of our young people have had to go away from the city because there were no opportunities here through which they could make a living.

Industrial Pursuits.
"It has been well said that every dollar going out of a place is a dollar lost, but it is a more serious matter if we let our young people go away from us, far more important than any loss in dollars and cents. (Applause.) In order to keep the younger element here it is our duty, in every possible way, to encourage, help and sympathize with those amongst us who are actively engaged in industrial pursuits. From that standpoint we should all welcome this magnificent exhibition, do what we can to show our appreciation by attending in large numbers and help forward in every way the work of the Victoria and Island Development Association and others are endeavoring to bring about and the creation of such conditions in the city as will benefit all of us and take us forward into the condition of prosperity we hope to be in before long." (Cheers.)

Commissioner Cuthbert read a telegram of regret from William Sloan, M. P. P. for Nanaimo, sent from Vancouver, in which Mr. Sloan said: "Regret that business matters have cropped up preventing me from attending your exhibition. Wish it every success." He also read a letter from Mayor Stewart, who was detained by civic business and hoped the fair would be the success it deserved to be.

Dr. S. F. Tolmie, Dominion live stock commissioner for British Columbia and president of the B. C. Agricultural Association, to whom fell the pleasant duty of declaring the fair open, said:

"I am sure that after looking through the excellent exhibits both from the factory and the farm to be seen here to-day we feel proud to think that they are the production of Victoria and its immediate vicinity. These exhibits will prove a surprise to many of our citizens who have not kept in very close touch with the industrial development of the city, and will help to establish renewed confidence in those who are feeling the pressure of the so-called hard times. This show outlines in miniature the tremendous possibilities of this section of British Columbia.

"The great war has been carried on with a large indifference which will have to be met by the citizens of this country. To meet this we will have to increase our production in every possible way, and it behooves every citizen to use his best efforts to encourage the consumption of the products of the home factory and farm. Under these circumstances, every citizen should take the deepest interest in the development of this city and this section of the province. There should be a feeling of community interest and a strong desire to help ourselves rather than to wait for the government to do something for us. (Applause.)

Agricultural Development.
"We should remember that our development depends largely on the energy displayed by the people who live here. Victoria and Vancouver Island will be just what the people make it, no more or no less. There should be a deeper interest shown by our citizens in the development of agriculture. They should purchase the produce of the local farm operated by a white man in preference to the imported article, and that produced by the alien.

"Remember that one of the best assets that the business man of Victoria can have is the satisfied farmer operating a farm close to this city. (Hear, hear.) Recollect that every dollar he earns is spent in your city, and that when you buy from him you not only assist him, but every tradesman in Victoria derives the benefit. When you buy articles grown in Washington or California you help to build up that country at the expense of your own, and when you purchase Chinese-grown products you are assisting the development in your midst of an undesirable element, and you build up a home in Canton or Shanghai.

"We have in our midst a very desirable class of citizens who are successful, retired business men, come here to reside and take advantage of our pleasant surroundings. These men, now that they have come among us, should also interest themselves in the development of the country. With their business experience and mature judgment they can render very valuable service. They are heavy buyers of the products which are grown and manufactured here. If they will insist on the purchase of local goods produced by white labor, they can lend a great impetus to local production. (Hear, hear.)

Value of Publicity.
"Publicity will play a most important part in our development. We have here to-day a splendid example of what two organizations—the Vancouver Island Development Association, with Mr. Cuthbert as its active representative, and the Victoria branch of the British Columbia Manufacturers' Association, ably represented by Mr. Wesley Newton, can do. I am sure that this show will in itself be worth more to the citizens of Victoria than the $7,000 grant made to the Development Association, and proves that this grant is money well expended.

"The Development Association is also largely responsible for starting the market movement in co-operation with the city council and other interested parties, we now have established a thrifty public market, in which the white producer and the consumer can meet and do business.

"We must not run away with the idea that because we know of the attractions of British Columbia, Vancouver Island and Victoria, other people residing elsewhere know about it also. It was only a few years ago, as I was traveling in the United States, I met a fellow passenger, and on telling him that I came from British Columbia, he asked me how far north of Alaska this province was situated.

"We produce in the surrounding districts strawberries that are equal to any grown, and the surplus is disposed of on the prairies. We would naturally imagine that the people over there would know about the Gordon Head strawberries. During a visit to the prairies when the strawberry season was at its height, I made a number of inquiries, and was surprised to find that none of those questioned had heard of the Gordon Head strawberries; they did not know that Gordon Head was on the map. Here is another opportunity for publicity to bring good results, because there is no reason why this excellent berry should not have a much greater market once the people become familiar with its good qualities. It might be well for the growers to put a slip in every box stating that these were Gordon Head, Victoria, berries.

Expenditure of Advertising.
"Our annual expenditure for the purpose of advertising this country appears small when we hear that one factory in the United States expends $150,000 a year advertising the merits of its pork and beans. The orange growers of California spend between $200,000 and $300,000 a year trying to induce the people to eat more oranges.

Now the dairymen of the United States propose to expend the sum of $750,000 a year over three years to tell the people why they should consume more milk, butter, cheese, and ice cream, and I am sure that what we have to offer in Victoria and Vancouver is greater than any of these.

"The more I travel on this continent the more I am convinced of the advantages of Victoria and British Columbia in general, and if we could expend a sufficient sum of money to fully inform, say, one-fourth of the people on this continent who have an income of over $3,000 a year, of our delightfully mild winter; of the beauties of our inland seas, lakes and rivers; of the fact that we can ripen strawberries and put them on the market in October; of the fact that we can catch fish within a few minutes of our docks; and have our splendid resources in the way of minerals, timber, and agriculture; that the expenditure would be returned many times over, and we would experience a boom in business such as we have never seen before.

Natural Advantages.
"I think, generally speaking, that a greater spirit of optimism should be displayed by the residents of this island. I am afraid that we have become so accustomed to the natural advantages of this section, that we do not realize them fully until we go elsewhere and find that we can get nothing as good. In referring to optimism, I do not mean the brand that is displayed by the 'booster' real-estate agent, but rather optimism with good common sense. (Hear, hear.) It is far better to have people telling about what we can do and what we are actually doing than taking a pessimistic view and continually talking about what we cannot do. I feel that if we will all join hands and take an interest in this matter of home products, it will prove of great advantage to us all.

"To-morrow at 3 o'clock, I understand, a meeting will be held in this building for the purpose of forming a branch of the British Columbia Consumers' Association. I hope that this will have the hearty support of our citizens, and I trust that all those who are here to-day and have seen this splendid exhibition will induce as many of their friends as possible to attend and learn something more about the possibilities of Victoria and Vancouver Island." (Applause.)

Dr. Tolmie concluded by formally declaring the show open.

J. C. Lugin, president of the board of trade, moving a vote of thanks to the speakers, laid emphasis upon the educational value of the show, and the demonstration it afforded that manufactures could be produced here in quantity and quality. Mr. Lugin paid a tribute to the work done both in connection with the show and the development of the city generally by the Victoria and Island Development Association and the Victoria branch of the B. C. Manufacturers' Association and their officers.

J. C. Lugin, vice-president of the B. C. Manufacturers' Association, seconding the vote, said the object of the show was to enable people to know what to ask for when ordering goods from their tradespeople. He trusted that everyone would carefully note what they saw and next time they needed anything specify the brand they wanted, insisting on getting home-made products.

The vote was formally tendered and acknowledged.

Handiwork of Convalescent Home Residents Attracts Notice at Exhibition

Sound of hammer and saw blended with the hum of many activities were the cheerful and industrious accompaniment to the opening exercises yesterday afternoon in connection with the Home Products' Exhibition, which is running through the present week at the Hudson's Bay building. It is a busy roar, like a thriving city in miniature, that greets the ear as one enters the unimposing doorway of the big stone building on Douglas street. And as the visitor strolls along the even thoroughfares and awakes to the consciousness that each industry represented is only a small-scale reproduction of a thriving concern within Victoria itself, his home town assumes a new and vital importance in his estimation. Scores of well-informed citizens were heard to express genuine surprise that such and such a comprehensive garnering of all the little and great enterprises could have demonstrated the magnitude of the city's activities.

The exhibition is admirably arranged. There is uniformity without tediousness, simplicity without lack of distinction. The imposing dimensions of the great colonnade hall are magnificently suited to such a display, the great height of the ceiling also affording a splendid opportunity for an effective system of decorating with flags.

The committee were wise in taking possession of the building and doing all the intended ornamentation themselves, as only by such a means would it have been possible to produce such a pleasing orderliness. The giant Doric columns, which give a fine perspective to the hall, have been draped from capital to base with fluted green and white. The colors are consistently carried out, filling in bare parts of the wall where the nature of the exhibition is not such as to utilize the entire background of a stall. From balcony and ceiling depend flags of the allies, giving gaiety and color as well as patriotic atmosphere to a picture finely symbolic of the progress of one of the outlying parts of the great empire.

The interest of governments is, in fact, more directly represented in two of the finest displays shown, viz., that of the Dominion and that of the Provincial government. The exhibits occupy opposite corners of the south end of the hall. The former has been arranged by the Dominion Experimental Station, and at first glance the visitor is surprised by the display of giant Indian corn which fringes the wall, some of the tasseled heads rising to a height of twelve or thirteen feet from the point where the stalks cut through the stalk. On the deep shelves below are displayed, model poultry-rearing devices, neatly reproduced to scale, and comprising the more approved designs in nest houses, fattening crates, field hoppers, etc.

It is probably owing to the particular limitations of space that there was no representation of the important branch of dairying, which has become one of the outstanding industries of the province as well as of the Dominion. Cattle-keeping was suggested in the presence of a model silo, however, a sixty-foot tower being represented in a neat twenty-four inch building which quite successfully displayed the design. Bee-keeping was more elaborately shown, a model beehive standing side by side with an actual honeycomb alighting with busy bees. Both comb honey and extracted honey in bottles were also exhibited.

Everything in the way of fodder grasses and grains was hinted at in the display of seeds, about forty-five kinds grown on Vancouver Island alone being shown. Three kinds of wheat, flax, alfalfa, peas, rye, bulbs and a Provincial Display.

The Provincial government display is very attractive, and the department has seized an excellent opportunity for the distribution of pamphlet literature on the subjects of fruit-growing, cattle-raising, bee- and poultry-keeping, seed cultivation, and a variety of other agricultural pursuits. The outstanding feature of the provincial exhibit is the great display of apples, the rosy, neatly boxed fruit occupying almost an entire wall to itself. Round one of the pillars, surmounted by the British Columbia crest, are examples of the fine potato growing possibilities of the soil, many beautiful varieties being shown. Cabbage, carrots, cucumbers, corn, onions, turnips, tomatoes, parsnips, artichokes, etc., etc., represent the vegetable kingdom, and apples, quinces, peaches, pears, apricots, etc., the fruits.

Just how attractive fruit-growing can be made is shown in a series of large colored photographs of some of the finer orchards to be found in British Columbia. Mining is represented in several rich specimens of lead, copper, silver and gold-ores, coal, asbestos, etc. The food fishes which afford the basis for one of the great industries of British Columbia are shown in splendidly mounted specimens of spring salmon, red cod, striped sea-bass, sockeye salmon, flounders, sole, blue cod, and coho salmon, the great cannery industry being hinted in the presence of some tinned mackerel and salmon.

No provincial exhibit could be considered complete without some representation of big game, which is typified in the fine heads of moose, elk and deer which adorn the upper walls. The display as a whole is attracting a great deal of attention, and is well worth a special visit.

Returned Soldiers.

How far the technical classes for the returned soldiers have progressed at the Military Convalescent Home, Esquimalt, is a matter which should appeal to every person who is interested in the welfare of the men who have come back maimed after service in the defence of the empire. Mid-way in the central aisle of the exhibition is a big stall which no one should fail to visit. Returned soldiers are in charge of the display, and are only too eager to give any information wished about any of the things shown.

The exhibition, incidentally, represents just a small part of the crafts in which the men are being trained in the technical classes opened some time ago at the home, and the soldiers of "J" unit, usually company, wearing the much prized badge for honorable discharge after service in the present war, of the raffle which they are conducting at their stand is to raise sufficient funds to open a small store in the city where they can dispose of their work.

Everything displayed testifies to the aptness of the pupils who have taken up handicrafts. There is an extraordinarily well finished dolls' house, for instance, with a real stairway, with carved banisters and rounded posts. And the hallway has genuine parquet flooring, a joy to look upon.

Even when this ideal dolls' home is raffled completely furnished and decorated, there are others procurable by the placing of orders. Christmas is not very many weeks distant, and perhaps it might be just as well to give the makers a chance by giving them some idea now of how many things will be needed. Photograph frames are other things which the returned soldiers are making beautifully. Pte. Barnett, of the 13th Battalion, has turned his hand to needlework with amazing skill, and several pieces of embroidery, including a handsome centrepiece which might be the envy of any needlewoman, are shown by him and orders asked for. Pte. T. Wardlaw, who belonged to the Princess Patricia's, has on view a beautifully made frame enclosing a picture of Princess Patricia herself. Pte. Moore, who was in charge of the display for the day, had on view a gracefully designed and neatly finished jewel case in oak, with ivory handles. A baby's jumper, the work of Pte. Bellamy, was among the practical things on view, and a game of chance was among the novelties.

Sir Arthur Evans, who launched the accusation, in his presidential address to the British Association, that we are a people "sunk in intellectual apathy," has already drawn vigorous protests from critics of his indictment. Of course, the reference is to the nation in the bulk. We know that the pick of Britain's intellect is the best in the world, but below that, well, when we consider some of our theatrical entertainments and cinema shows, and the large tonnage of certain kinds of reading matter, we are obliged to believe that the president of the B. A. has some grounds for his statement.—London Chronicle.

great deal of attention, as well as the other vegetables by the same grower. The seeds themselves are very clean and fine looking and it is said by those competent to judge are as pure and fine as can be grown anywhere in the world.

Another vegetable, flower and fruit exhibit is that from the school gardens of the city. It shows that some excellent work is being done at Kingston St., Oaklands, George Jay and in the home gardens in connection with the latter as well as in the garden of the Children's Aid school. In the future the school garden exhibit will probably increase, as there is a decided movement toward making practical gardening one of the technical subjects to be included in the regular curriculum of the schools.

Something wholly new was the exhibits from the five manual training centres of the Saanich schools. The work is under the direction of Leonard A. Campbell of Victoria West. It differs from the ordinary manual training work in that it turns more to the practical features. The aim of the work, as explained by the director, is to have everything that is made, of use to the pupils. That gives an impetus to the interest and makes the boys work with much more eagerness. Among the articles shown are a full sized garden wheelbarrow, a step-ladder, bookcase, stools and tables. They reflect great credit on both the instructor and the pupils who did the work.

In some parts of the hall last night, notably in the tea rooms, it was rather cold and draughty. This has been remedied to a large extent and visitors will find the hall much more comfortable to-night.

Commissioner Herbert Cuthbert announces that to-morrow there will be a get-together meeting of all exhibitors in the fair, in the tea rooms at 12.30. Lunch will be served and then a discussion will take place regarding the advisability of trying to secure the largest possible amount of permanent benefits from the fair. The president of the Manufacturers' Association, J. C. Penderay, and F. Wesley Newton, the secretary, have taken the initiative in helping to bring all the exhibitors into agreement and the former will preside at the meeting.

Invitations have been sent out by the exhibitors to all their customers, inviting them to attend the fair during the next few days and it is expected that as a result the attendance will be large.

Public Market.—Mid-week market will witness a large attendance of producers and full lines of all seasonable produce. Large crowds are expected at Wednesday's market in view of the exhibition and the public wishing to patronize local productions.

PROSPECTS BRIGHT

FOR COMING SEASON

Basketball Enthusiasts Hold Meeting; Many Teams Will Enter League

There was a large gathering of basketball enthusiasts in the Y. M. C. A. last night when the formation of a basketball league for the approaching season was discussed. Delegates were present from about eight teams who wished to enter the senior series and other prospective teams were heard from indirectly. In view of the fact that so many clubs are preparing for the coming season, it may be possible to form an intermediate series or a second division, while a business men's league was also mooted.

The chief discussion last night centered around the preparing of a set of by-laws and with this object in view a committee was appointed consisting of Messrs. Todd, Riach, Nute, Jessop and Hopkins, which will meet Saturday and draw up a temporary set. Another angle of the situation which caused some discussion was the floors upon which the games would be played. The Y. I. A. wish to play their home fixtures on their own floor and it is likely that this will be arranged. However, many of the teams have no home in which to play and it is proposed that these teams play both their home and away from home games on the Y. M. C. A. gym. The following teams have signified their intention of entering: Y. I. A. (2 teams), Y. M. C. A., Peden Bros., Returned Soldiers, Congregationals, 50th, Highlanders, First Presbyterians, James Bay, Tom Nute's team (unattached), and 6th Regiment (Black Rock battery).

FORMER CHAMPION

IN FINAL ROUND

Boston, Oct. 2.—Mrs. J. V. Hurd, of Pittsburgh, who, as Miss Dorothy Cartwright, was champion woman golfer of this country, Great Britain and Canada, was medalist yesterday in the qualifying round of the women's national golf championship at Belmont Spring Country Club. Her score of 86 was four better than those of her nearest competitors, Mrs. W. A. Gavin, the noted English sportsman, who holds the Eastern title; Miss Georgina Bishop, of Brookline, Conn.; and Mrs. John H. Lapham, of San Antonio, Tex.

Scores of 102 and better put thirty-two players into the first round at match play for championship that begins to-day.

N.H.A. WILL OPERATE

THE COMING SEASON

228th Battalion Will Be Admitted; Peace Agreement With Coast Accepted

Montreal, Oct. 3.—The executive of the National Hockey Association sat from 10 o'clock Saturday morning till 2 that afternoon, and when they rose and adjourned till October 23 they had really done nothing beyond deciding to play hockey, to admit the hockey club of the 228th Regiment to their schedule, and to approve of certain clauses of the new peace arrangement proposed by Frank Patrick on behalf of the Pacific Coast League.

The 228th Battalion, which was represented by Capt. Held and Lieut. Geo. MacNamara, will be allowed to operate the franchise of the old Ontario club, which was taken over by the N. H. A. last year, and was not used. The club will have on its team the two MacNamara brothers, Barbour, Goldie Prockers, Keats, Gordon Mackay and a man named Duncan from the Pacific Coast. The new peace agreement was virtually adopted, but there are some minor clauses which do not meet with the approval of the eastern people, though it is expected they will be easily agreed upon with some slight modification.

The principal feature of the new agreement is that all the men at present under reserve will remain in the property of the respective clubs, and that both eastern and western leagues will respect the reservations. One clause, however, is at present a matter of dispute, which, it is thought, will be easily adjusted.

There is also a provision in the agreement for future world's series. Last season the players received the net proceeds of the respective clubs, and that proceeds of the clubs shall share in this. The full text of the agreement will not be published till every clause is adopted.

W. B. Foran, the chief Stanley cup trustee, is to be the arbitrator on any question the Coast League and the N. H. A. People cannot agree upon after a reasonable time.

The question of the next president was also left over until the meeting on the 23rd of October. Great efforts have been made, it seems, to have Major Frank Robinson, former owner of the Toronto club, to accept the position, but it seems next to impossible to get him, in view of his many other spheres of work, and Harvey Purford, of Ottawa, is now being seriously talked about.

President Lichtenhein, of the Wanderers, stated that he would insist on a certain amount of the receipts of each match going to the Red Cross, and that he intended to see that his players were men whose playing would not interfere with recruiting.

He also stated that he expected to have Phelan and Adams, of the St. Paul club, on his roster this season. Those present at the meeting were: T. Emmett Quinn (president), Frank Calder (secretary), George Kennedy (Canadian), E. E. Lichtenhein (Wanderers), J. Livingston (Toronto), M. J. Quinn (Quebec), and Frank Shaughnessy (Ottawa).

WILL START WORLD'S

SERIES SATURDAY

Chicago, Oct. 3.—President B. B. Johnson, of the American League, left here yesterday for New York to join President Jack Tener of the National League, and Garry Herrman, chairman of the National commission, in making arrangements for the world's series.

It is the plan of the National commission to start the series on Saturday, Mr. Johnson said, but until the National League race is decided, the place for playing the first game cannot be selected.

BROOKLYN LOOKS

SAFE IN NATIONAL

Phillies Will Have to Make Clean Sweep of Boston Series to Take Title

Chicago, Oct. 3.—Settlement of the championship in the National league in to-day's games appears to be a probability. According to statisticians Philadelphia would have to win the next four games in order to force Brooklyn to make a clean sweep against New York. While on the other hand, if Philadelphia loses two games to Boston and Brooklyn wins one from New York, the race is over. The latter result would give Brooklyn 93 victories and 56 defeats to 86 victories and 61 defeats for Philadelphia. By winning their two remaining games, the champions would still be short, even if Brooklyn lost their two. Should Brooklyn win the next three games there would be no chance for Philadelphia to catch up.

Brooklyn has three more games with New York and Philadelphia four with Boston. From a percentage standpoint if each team wins all of its games Brooklyn will lead by one point. If Brooklyn loses three games Philadelphia will have to break even to take the lead. If each team loses one game, Brooklyn will lead by two points. If each team loses two games, Brooklyn will lead by three points.

FITTERY, IRON MAN

OF COAST LEAGUE

Salt Lake Pitcher Hardest Worked Moundsman, While Ryan Leads in Wins

Coast League pitching records for four weeks show that Paul Fittery, of the Salt Lake club, is the hardest worked moundsman in the circuit for the first 24 weeks of play, as he has worked in 135 1-3 innings. He has also allowed the most runs, 154, with Hall of the same team, in second place, with 133.

Fronch is second to Fittery in the number of full games worked, as he has pitched in 25, one less than the Bear, Jack Ryan has worked in 21, tying Al Sotheron in this respect.

Ryan is the leading pitcher of the league, in the number of wins and losses, but Sotheron, of Vernon, leads in percentage of runs responsible for, with 154 per nine innings.

MITCHELL MET THEM,

GREAT AND SMALL

Present Day Fighters Not in the Same Class With Skillful Briton

The success of medium-sized boxers like Jack Dillon, Bob Moha and Battling Levinsky, who have disposed of heavyweights having the advantage of many pounds, seems to have created the impression that the feats of these modern Jack the Giant Killers are unparalleled in the annals of pugilism.

No greater error could be made, for the history of the roped square is replete with examples of the "good little man" beating big opponents, some of whom came under the classification of "good big men."

As a matter of fact the achievements of the little fellows a quarter of a century ago excelled those of the present day Lilliputians in a marked degree.

Among the former ringsters who never paid any attention to the question of weight was Charley Mitchell, the British boxer, who recently sailed for home after a visit to New York. Mitchell at his best never scaled more than 166 pounds, but he was so skillful a boxer and at the same time so hard a puncher with either hand that he was enabled to baffle many of the giants of the ring and decisively defeat some of them.

Mitchell's battles with the Boston strong boy, John L. Sullivan, illustrate how science, speed and courage triumphed over superior avoirdupois.

Mitchell's first appearance against Sullivan was in Madison Square Garden on May 14, 1883, and the Englishman put the big fellow flat on his back in the first round, for a clean knock-down.

This enraged Sullivan, who began a series of rushes at his smaller opponent, with the object of annihilating him; but without doing any special damage. Mitchell came through the second round without much trouble and was holding his own in the third when Chief of Police Williams, a tender-hearted man, who carried a club merely as an ornament, became convinced that Sullivan would say Mitchell and so he stopped the bout.

The records say that Sullivan won the bout, but how he did so does not appear in the details, which indicate that Mitchell outpointed the American champion during the time they were in the ring.

The fears of Chief Williams appear to have been grounded, as the result of the battle between Mitchell and Sullivan in Chantilly, France, on March 10, 1888, indicated that the larger man had no chance of seriously injuring his smaller opponent. The American weighed 200 pounds when he entered the ring at Chantilly, while Mitchell, then at his best, scaled 166 pounds. The men fought under London rules, with bare hands and on the turf. Sullivan started the battle with the same rushing, plunging tactics that marked his work in Madison Square Garden, but his agile, clever and brainy Mitchell avoided all the clumsy rushes of Sullivan and at every opening sent in stinging jabs and hooks.

Mitchell drew first blood in the eighth round and gradually wore down Sullivan, who exhausted himself in his efforts to land a knockout punch on the Englishman.

During the bout a drizzling rain began to fall, and Sullivan blamed his failure to win on the rain, which, he said, chilled him so he could not fight with any vigor.

There was, however, no lack of vigor on the part of the Briton, who certainly was stripped to the waist like Sullivan and was not protected from the rain by a mackintosh.

Beginning with the thirtieth round Sullivan weakened perceptibly, due to the speed with which Mitchell carried him along and the constant shower of blows rained on the American.

While the thirty-ninth round was in progress Sullivan's chief second went to Mitchell's corner and made a proposition for a draw. Under the London rules it was permissible for the contestants to agree to a draw, with the proviso that the battle should be resumed at a time and place to be selected by the referee.

The Mitchell party at first refused to consider the proposition for a draw, as they saw that their man looked to be a sure winner. But finally the Sullivan party, who also were aware that Sullivan was in a fair way to be knocked out in a few more rounds, offered $2,500 to the Mitchellites to consent to a draw.

This offer was accepted, and the contest ended at the end of the thirty-ninth round, with Sullivan almost exhausted and Mitchell still fresh and strong.

But Sullivan did not wait to hear where the battle was to be resumed. Mr. Sullivan had pressing business elsewhere, and he went on his way convinced that Mitchell was too precocious a lad to be easily whipped.

JOHNNY KILBANE IS

AFTER WELSH'S CROWN

Cleveland Boy Wants Lightweight Title Holder to Make 133 Pounds Ringside

Johnny Kilbane, who on Labor Day flattened George Chaney, the "K.O. King," and thus removed the last aspiring featherweight from his path, now has his eye on Frederick Welsh, owner "in perpetuity" of the lightweight championship.

Kilbane thinks he can take the honors away from Welsh, and is willing to try if the conditions are suitable.

After pocketing his share of the $10,000 received for lambasting Chaney, Kilbane said:

"I was ambitious once to win the featherweight championship. I am ambitious to win the lightweight championship. 'Any time Freddie Welsh and a promoter are ready I am ready. Let the weight be 133 ringside and we'll go half way in reaching an agreement.'"

Kilbane's confidence in his ability to defeat Welsh is echoed in the opinion of many who witnessed the Chaney contest. One well-known critic asserted: "It is my candid opinion that Kilbane is the only man who can outpoint and probably knock Welsh out."

Kilbane in his keynote speech touches the one obstacle to a match and that is the weight. He at once dictates 133 pounds ringside to Welsh, who would probably decline to reduce to that point for the featherweight champion.

Welsh will unquestionably insist on 135 pounds, the weight at which he won from Ritchie and the weight at which he and White boxed. No doubt there are a dozen promoters who would be eager to stage a Welsh-Kilbane match, but it will be useless to talk terms till the question of weight is settled.

KHAKI TEAMS MAY

PLAY IN VANCOUVER

Amateur hockey fans are enthusiastic over the outlook for the game in Vancouver this winter, according to reports from that city. There is a chance that in addition to four or five civilian teams there may be a couple of soldier teams there.

Vancouver City League this season. The 128th, 172nd and 231st have been communicated with, and it is expected that one or two of these battalions at least will have entries. Three civilian teams have already been assured, the Hudson's Bay Co., Clarke-Hennessy & Co. and Malkins having signified their intention of entering players, while the firemen and the Ford Motor Co. are also endeavoring to organize clubs.

I had searched in vain, writes a correspondent, for an example of efficiency in the reports of the apparent size of heavenly bodies—zeppelins, for example—until I came upon a report in The Daily Chronicle. "The zeppelin at that distance," said this reporter, "was as long as a pencil held at arm's length." Those four words distinguish this description from all others.—London Chronicle.

The news that Deptford has found another Deptford in Australia (with a population of 53) and has sent fraternal greetings suggests speculation as to whether there are many large towns in this kingdom which have no "sister" anywhere in the dominions. London has its counterpart in Ontario, and London (Ont.) has a suburb of Ealing. Manchester are fairly common in what were once our American colonies, but I doubt whether Liverpool has a dominions sister. There are Birmingham in the States; a Newcastle in South Africa; and several Rochesters in North America. The Glasgow in Michigan recalls the story against the post office, that someone in London wrote a letter to "Glasgow," which arrived eventually via the States marked "Try Scotland."—London Chronicle.

In recalling the names of survivors who were prominently identified with early trade union congresses, one must certainly not forget the Right Hon. Thomas Burt, P.C. and M.P., now in his 80th year, who as plain Tom Burt was one of the 47 delegates who attended the second congress, held in Birmingham in 1869, and occupied the presidential chair 22 years later. Just now it is interesting to recall that this veteran labor leader, who began to work in a coal mine at the age of 10, and was acting as parliamentary secretary to the Board of Trade about a quarter of a century ago, was one of our representatives at the Berlin Labor Conference in 1890, convened by the kaiser.—London Chronicle.

An officer in charge of a company of infantry on the ranges at —, wishing to "rapid firing," turned to the company and asked if anyone had a watch with a second-hand. There was no answer for a few moments, when one of the "last batch" remarked: "Please, sir, I have a secondhand one."

The Observatory, Gonzales Heights, Victoria, B. C.

Halifax, Nova Scotia, under the Russian guns, is one of those Gallic towns with a past record greater than its present appearance warrants. Excavations made in the suburbs towards the end of the last century disclosed extensive remains which proved it to have been at one time a great city, whose existence was not dependent, as now, upon brine wells. The theory which accounts for the decay of a town that once formed the headquarters of a civilization is that destruction occurred during the first great Mongol invasion—London Chronicle.

FULL LIST SAILING ON OUTBOUND RUSSIA

C. P. R. Liner Will Get Away on Thursday With All Accommodations Taken Up

According to officials of the C. P. R., the liner Empress of Russia will have another capacity list of cabin passengers when she leaves this port on Thursday night for the Far East. The Russia has saloon accommodation for 350 passengers and it is estimated that fully this number will leave on the liner's forthcoming trip to the Orient. The Russia is now completing cargo at Vancouver and under the present arrangements she will get away from the mainland port about noon on Thursday.

With the departure of the liner the increased first class fare to Hongkong will become effective. The new cabin passenger rate to Hongkong is quoted at $250. The increase does not appear to have affected travel by the C. P. R. boats.

C. E. Benjamin, general passenger agent for the Canadian Pacific Ocean Services, Ltd., has arrived in the city from Montreal and will leave for the Orient aboard the Russia. He is making the trip to the Far East to become better acquainted with the service with which he is so closely identified.

Among other passengers will be J. H. Crocker, chief of the physical culture department of the Chinese Young Men's Christian Association at Shanghai, China. Mr. Crocker, with his wife and two children, has been enjoying a six months' vacation and has been visiting friends in the east. He is a well-known Canadian, having been a physical instructor at Halifax, N. S., nearly 20 years ago. He is returning by the Empress of Russia to resume his work at Shanghai. Accompanying him will be Arthur Lockley, who for some time past has been in charge of the physical instruction department of the Y. M. C. A. at Vancouver, and who will take up this work in China.

In addition to her large passenger list the Russia is taking out a capacity cargo of general merchandise. Local agents of the C. P. R. have been advised that the liner Empress of Asia, outbound from this port, arrived at Hongkong at 8 a. m. on October 1.

STRIKE AT SEATTLE

PRACTICALLY SETTLED

Longshoremen Expected to Return to Work To-day Under Original Conditions

Seattle, Oct. 3.—There has been a slight hitch in the negotiations for the settlement of the longshoremen's strike, but it is said the strikers will return to work this afternoon on practically the same conditions that existed before the strike, the question of wages to be arbitrated within 10 days. All but one of the larger employers has agreed to the terms, and this employer is expected to join the others within a few hours.

Despite the prospects for an early settlement of the water front strike, violence broke out again yesterday afternoon, when nine non-union dock workers were attacked by a gang of strikers at Western avenue and Seneca street. Four of the men were badly beaten they were taken to the City hospital for treatment of their wounds, while the others escaped with slight cuts and bruises. Three men were arrested on a charge of disorderly conduct.

Robert White, a guard in charge of the group of dock workers, said that the attack was without provocation.

TOOK BODY ABOARD

American Steamer Major Thomas Called Here for Remains of Soldier Found Drowned in Harbor.
The United States government steamer Major R. Thomas berthed at the outer docks last evening for the purpose of conveying the body of John O'Brien, corporal of the United States artillery, who on Sept. 25 last was found drowned in the inner harbor. The Major R. Thomas arrived from Fort Worden about 3 p. m. and sailed about an hour later with the body of the American soldier.

ATHENIA PUT AHEAD.

Dundonald Line agents have been notified that the liner Athenia will sail from Montreal for Glasgow on Oct. 15 instead of Oct. 17.

CAPT. THORNAGEL WAS STRICKEN ON VOYAGE

Master of Barquentine Alta Compelled to Relinquish Command to First Officer

The American barquentine Alta, with First Officer Eidsow in command, arrived at San Francisco yesterday, 66 days out from Sydney, N. S. W. Fifteen days out from Sydney the Alta was struck by a circular storm, which lasted for two days, and many times the members of the crew feared that the vessel would settle in the trough of the sea and never recover herself. Fine seamanship, however, beat the elements. Things went along splendidly then until Aug. 19 when Capt. William Thornagel was stricken with an acute illness. He was unable to navigate the vessel and Chief Officer Eidsow took charge.

The vessel carried 1,738 tons of coke as cargo.

The barquentine Alta is one of the best known vessels that ever shipped into Victoria under canvas, and her skipper, Capt. Thornagel, can boast a host of friends in this city which he was wont to consider his home port.

About five years ago the Alta was a regular trader between British Columbia ports and the amount of ballast that she has dumped into the Royal Roads will never be computed. Many are the voyages that the Alta has made with British Columbia lumber to South Africa and Australia, but of late years she has not been north of San Francisco. The Alta is a four-masted barquentine of 1,379 tons register, and was formerly owned by A. P. Lorentzen, of San Francisco. Capt. Thornagel being part owner. Since she was last at Victoria the Alta has changed hands.

ORDER INEFFECTIVE

Claimed Unnecessary Expense Incurred Without Affecting Health Protection.

Steamship officials of companies engaged in transporting oriental steerage passengers from far eastern points to the United States, find little to admire in the new quarantine order, under which all third class passengers are required to be landed at Diamond point for bacteriological examination. It is stated that the order is ineffective as it now stands. Storage passengers alone are affected by the new regulations. Placing them ashore and maintaining them for an extended time incurs delay and unnecessary expense without affording health protection, it is claimed.

PRESIDENT DOCKED LATE

Reached Here About Midnight With Large List of Passengers.

Having left San Francisco nine hours behind schedule, the Pacific Coast Steamship Company's liner President, Capt. Geo. Zeh, reached port at 11:45 p. m. yesterday, after disembarking passengers and discharging cargo left behind on the day for Seattle. The steamship brought north a total of 294 passengers, forty of whom came ashore here. It is understood that the President will get away on her southbound trip on schedule.

CONGRESS PREPARING TO RETURN TO PORT

Marshfield, Ore., Oct. 3.—Preparations have been completed for the departure to-day of the steamer Congress for Seattle. Temporary repairs have been made to the steamer, and Capt. J. P. Blain, representing the Pacific Coast Steamship Company, has been seaworthy. The Congress caught fire off this port September 14 last, and was brought in here after her passengers had been landed from boats without loss of life.

RETAINS HIS POSITION.

Marry Brandt, general passenger agent of the Pacific Coast Steamship Company, will hold the same position under the Pacific Steamship Company, the organization recently formed by the consolidation of the Admiral Line and the Pacific Coast interests.

SHIPPING CONFERENCE

TO BE REORGANIZED

Canadian Pacific Ocean Services, Ltd., Acts as Mediator Among Steamship Lines

With the arrival of the liner Mont-eagle from the Orient it was learned that the Hongkong Shipping Conference, which has been practically nonexistent for some time past on account of the withdrawal of the Japanese shipping companies due to their disagreement with other members of the conference, will dissolve and be reorganized very soon.

In view of the great inconvenience which every one of the shipping companies carrying on the trans-Pacific service has to suffer on account of the lack of unity among them, the Canadian Pacific Ocean Services, Ltd., has offered to mediate between the Japanese members who have stood outside of the conference and the members who have remained in it, on the condition that the old conference be dissolved and in its stead a new one formed with the support of all interested in the trans-Pacific trade.

The offer has just been accepted by all the parties concerned, and a new conference is coming into existence with 13 lines as members, including the Nippon Yusen Kaisha, the Osaka Shosen Kaisha, the Canadian Pacific Ocean Services, Ltd.; the Bank Line, the China Mail Steamship Co., the Pacific Mail Steamship Co., the Glen Line, the Waterhouse Line, the Java, China and Japan Line and the China Mutual Ocean Steamship Co.

ATTRACTIVE DISPLAYS BY LOCAL MANUFACTURERS

Exhibits at Home Products Fair Show Variety of Industries Developed From Natural Resources of Island

As an industrial feature the Home Products Fair is acknowledged by everyone to be of immense benefit to all concerned. It is an occasion for getting together and comparing notes as well as of getting the general public interested in local made wares. For a first day the attendance was excellent and so much interest was evidenced in the general exhibition that those who had taken the trouble to prepare for the event were more than satisfied. Usually at events of this kind the amusement features are so all-absorbing that the real object of the fair has been lost. On this occasion the amusements have been certainly attractive, but they have been subordinated to the exhibition features and the change was particularly noticeable.

There were one or two stalls that were not quite complete yesterday, the exhibitors apparently not expecting that the first day would be of any importance, yet no sooner had the whistles announced the opening of the doors than people began entering the building and this was kept up until late at night. In a general way the exhibits were all in place before the opening. The few late comers were those who did not decide to exhibit until the last minute or who were awaiting the completion of certain goods which they were to feature.

From an industrial point of view the show has been the means of revealing a number of industries hitherto unknown to the people. The manufacture of aniline dyes is a prominent example of this. No one knew that this could be done in Victoria, yet there were the goods and the man who made them.

To the housewife the fair is proving an eye opener. She finds that she can secure home-made goods of better quality than the imported, and at equally as low or lower prices, and at the same time encourage home industries. She is taking note and will govern herself accordingly. She is not saying much but her deep thinking can almost be heard.

The following are some of the industrial features which are attracting attention:

B. C. Telephone Co., Ltd.
The B. C. Telephone Co. has a private exchange at the fair as a demonstration of the manner in which the work is done, and as a convenience to the people who attend the fair. No charges are being made by the firm for either phones at the booth or for the use of the ordinary pay stations. The only charge made is for long distance. No less than 50 phones have been installed free of charge and the use of these is given throughout the week absolutely free to people who are patrons of the company. This is proving a great convenience and one that is appreciated by everyone.

The exchange at the fair is No. 6,600, and that is the number subscribers should ring who wish to speak to anyone at the fair.

Besides providing the conveniences above mentioned the company shows samples of the cables used and the manner in which it is built up. The methods of splicing are made clear and a section of a cable containing no less than 1,200 wires, the largest in use in this city, is there for the inspection of those who are interested in electrical communication.

There is also a pole changer of the latest type which is about to be installed at Colquitz, and there are exhibits of rural exchanges such as are used for hotels and other institutions which need many branches.

Sweeney Cooperage Co., Ltd.
The Sweeney Cooperage Co. Ltd. is a concern that has done business in Victoria for a number of years, thus saving the sending away of good money to buy the things which Victorians can make themselves. It has a factory at Victoria West where it makes barrels, cooperage stock, kegs, kists, freezers and tierces. Most of the wood used is the famous Douglas fir which is cut at local mills, and the manufacture of which gives employment to local people. More than that most of the containers which are manufactured are made for the purpose of marketing or exporting Victoria products.

White Swan Soap
White Swan Soap made in Victoria is the special exhibit of W. J. Pendray & Sons, Ltd., the well-known soap manufacturers of this city. It was many years ago, in 1875 to be exact, that Mr. Pendray started making soap in a small shack. Gradually the business developed until now it has a reputation throughout the country. It is a reliable article and does not cost any more than any of the imported soaps. "White Swan" and Victoria are almost synonymous names, and it is well for people to remember it.

As well as soap of various grades and brands, Pendray & Sons are showing liquid bluing, ammonia, vinegar, washing soda and other articles all made right here especially for the use of the women of Victoria.

In connection with the exhibit of the Pendray company it is noted that this company is the only one making soap in Victoria, and for that reason it should receive the patronage of local people. The money expended on White Swan soaps is kept in the city and is likely to find its way back into the pockets of the purchasers, whereas the money expended outside stays away and is of no more value to Victorians.

Interior Hardwood Finishing Co.
The Interior Hardwood Finishing Co. is a new firm recently organized in Victoria for the purpose of manufacturing those things which were formerly made in Germany, such as aniline dyes and painters' colors. The company has secured the services of an expert who knows his business, and at the fair they are exhibiting samples of the materials which they are able to make.

Many of the articles shown are the product of inferior earth in combination with other products, practically all of which are produced in large quantities on Vancouver Island. There are such things as furniture polish, artists' water colors, shoe polishes, water stain for furniture, inside and outside letter dressing, different colored inks, and similar articles. Azle grooves from inferior earth and soapstone are put in neat boxes, and black coloring and high grade oils all indicate that the company has a wide range of activities.

Besides manufacturing this concern does polishing of high class furniture, and the work can be done by their process at eastern prices.

A unique exhibit that they make is a life-saving underwear of a material that will not allow the water to penetrate and will keep the person wearing it afloat indefinitely.

Of interest to miners is the portable smelter, full plans and specifications of which are shown and which it is proposed to manufacture in Victoria. This smelter is absolutely new, but it has been demonstrated to be a complete success. It handles 40 tons of ore a day and costs when completed, from $1,500 to $2,500. The cost of operating is not more than $40 a day, so that the material is smelted for a dollar a ton. The process is electrical and simple, and the results have shown it to be absolutely effective. A quarter of a ton of rock disintegrates in five minutes.

C. P. R. Telegraph.
As a convenience to patrons the C. P. R. telegraph has installed an instrument at the fair, and an obliging operator is always on duty from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. In addition to the regular services the telegraph people, in collaboration with the Times, have arranged for a news bulletin service, thus making it possible for people attending the fair to keep in touch with the war events even better than if they were in town.

B. C. Electric Railway Co.
The life of the fair is the power and lighting facilities supplied free of all charges by the B. C. Electric Company. The building is well lighted throughout and power is supplied for machinery in motion, for heating apparatus, and for all and every purpose to which patrons wish to put it.

On entering the building and turning to the right one of the striking exhibits is the demonstration of the uses to which electric power can be put, particularly in domestic affairs. Cooking is especially featured, it being the opinion of many that the cooking and heating of the future will be nearly all done electrically. The local electricians have co-operated with the electric company to make the display representative, and each of the electricians has a small display in connection with that of the power company.

Carter Electric Co.

One of the finest of the electrical displays shown in the building is that of the Carter Electric Co. A complete dining-room and kitchen is seen in full operation with the husband and wife sitting at the table partaking of a meal. The food is cooked in an electric range, an automatic affair that makes it impossible to burn the food, and which cooks to a nicety. It is possible by the use of this range to go out for the evening and find hot coffee and rolls or any other luxury that may be required awaiting their return. It is a marvelous thing for a housewife to use as it revolutionizes the whole process of housekeeping. Of course there were fixtures and other interesting electrical apparatus at this stall, but the cooking is the thing that appeals to the average person as the paramount subject in the economy of life.

Hawkins & Hayward.

Applied electricity is well shown in the stall of Hawkins & Hayward. A unique exhibit is the electric washing machine that saves labor to an extent hitherto unknown. According to modern methods women will no longer weary themselves by bending over the wash-tub when they can get electric power to do it for them in less time and without any appreciable extra cost. The electric curling tongs, etc., for ladies, the vacuum cleaners and the cooking apparatus shown in this stall are all features that interest every woman in this city.

Kingham & Co.

This being the season of the year when people are turning their attention to fuel, the coal exhibit was naturally very appealing to visitors, especially in the evening when the tang in the air brought visions of an open hearth with a blazing fire sending out warmth and cheer. The famous New Wellington product supplied by this firm was displayed in such a way as to show the different grades and qualities of each.

Lange & Co., Tailors.

Even in war time it is desirable that both men and women should be correctly tailored. Nothing so tends to give a man or woman standing in the community as properly cut tailored clothes. Lange & Co. have on exhibition at the fair samples of ladies' and men's clothes which are well worth passing note. The ladies' costume showed a pretty highland kilted skirt and black coat with highland style collars and cuffs of tartan. The gentlemen's winter tweed suit of grey chevrot was attractive, while the naval and military clothes were of the kind for which this firm is noted. The goods are all made in Victoria and the person patronizing this firm can be sure he or she is not encouraging sweated labor.

Nowater Soap.
Everyone gets dirty hands sometimes, and that is the reason why the nowater soap exhibit is attracting so much attention. Nowater soap is a new made-in-Victoria product. Crowds gather around the stall where this product is being demonstrated. Many are the encomiums heard from those who have tried the product, and the opinion is freely expressed that this is an article that would fill a need in the community and that there will be a permanent and constant demand for it throughout the country. Usually the soap is used without water, but it may be also used in the same way as an ordinary soft soap.

W. A. Jameson Coffee Co.

There will be many users of the famous J. & M. Coffee after the fair is over, for there is a constant demand for it every afternoon and evening, and the ladies who serve this famous brand are constantly on the move giving everyone a chance to indulge themselves in a cup of coffee free of charge. The Jameson people know a thing or two about advertising. They know that to once enjoy a cup of the real thing as they serve it means a permanent convert to the Victoria ground coffee that is sold by this firm. Among the exhibits of the Jameson Company in addition to the coffee were noticed baking powder, extracts, and many household goods which are in general use in the city. "Made in Victoria" is the motto of the W. A. Jameson Company.

A. P. Blyth.

The making of lenses is being illustrated by A. P. Blyth at the Home Products fair. There are the famous Keopiks invisible bi-focal lenses, the lens lenses, and lenses made from Sir William Crook glass. The tools and instruments used in the manufacture and a picture of the factory where the work is done complete an interesting little exhibit.

McKay & Gillespie.

Not only coal but cordwood of that quality which certifies good burning and heating qualities are displayed by McKay & Gillespie. A pyramid of coal surrounded by a fence of cordwood is suggestive of winter comfort and fire-side enjoyment. The Wellington coal of all grades is in evidence and the three-cut cordwood which housewives like.

Brackman-Ker Milling Co.

Extra cream rolled oats made in Victoria from British Columbia grains are being served with real fresh Victoria cream in connection with the B. & K. exhibit at the Home Products fair. These rolled oats are the only ones made in the province from the British Columbia product. That is one reason why they are purchased so largely by the people of this city. But there is another reason, according to the manager of the company, Mr. Gibb says that they are not only home manufactured but they are among the best on the market and of uniform quality. In addition to the oats, the company is exhibiting wheat flakes, also made from British Columbia grain— Graham flour, split peas and all sorts of household commodities. A demonstrator is cooking muffins at the stall and is certainly showing the excellence of the products.

Island Motorist.

Charles L. Harris is a busy man this week, for he is not only representing his monthly magazine, the Island Motorist, but he is working overtime in the interests of the Island Automobile Association. He is talking Canadian National Highway and enthralling visitors with the Todd ideas about roads in general. He is a busy man and he is using the opportunity which this week affords with good effect.

Whittington Lumber Co.

Interior finishing is the work chiefly displayed by the Whittington Lumber Company at the fair. Stairs, cupboards, sashes, mantels, wood carving and garden swings are all in evidence at the department fitted up by this company. Everything for the builder is typified in the exhibit and that is what the Whittington Lumber Company has. There is a small lathe in operation and a man in charge showing it.

The Quadra Greenhouses.

The Quadra Greenhouses have a delightful greenery that is like an oasis in a desert of utility products at the Made in Victoria Fair. Flowers and plants of all descriptions, but particularly ferns and begonias are in evidence. Some of the maiden hair varieties give a delightful artistic touch to the scene. The company also has on view the utility lines of interest to the gardener. Such things as fertilizers, flower pots, fumigating material and such like are to be seen, but the crowning glory is the hothouse grape.

Sidney Rubber Roofing Co.

The Sidney Rubber Roofing Co. has an exhibit at the fair which is of particular interest to builders or to those who wish to erect summer cottages or outhouses. The "Manjak" slag surfaced roofing made at Sidney for the people of Victoria and other parts of British Columbia is a type of material which promises to become very popular in the future. The exhibit shows a small cottage or shack with roof and walls made of the asphalt material which it makes. The company also supplies a cement for laying the roofing so that it may give the best possible results.

Thorpe & Co.

Many people seem to imagine that mineral waters are essentially summer drinks. That was once the case, but modern inventions have shown that warm drinks suited for winter use can be made without alcohol, and these are put up by the Thorpe company and have a large sale. The exhibit of bottled drinks at the fair show a large variety. They are arranged in the form of a pyramid and are easily inspected. They range all the way from ginger ale to fruit syrup, and include many popular beverages.

Victoria Gas Co.

The Victoria Gas Co., the firm which supplies all the coal gas which is used in the city of Victoria, has a display of coke and all the methods of using their gas commercially or for household purposes. Stoves, heaters and ranges all illustrate the methods of cooking and heating which are popular among those who have gas laid on in their houses. There is a general demand for gas as a substitute for other forms of fuel and light, and many housekeepers refuse to live in a house which is not supplied with this convenient and clean method of cooking.

Other Exhibits.

The exhibit of material put up by the Whaling Company is something unique and interesting. The implements used in hunting and the products, both crude and manufactured, are shown in compact and interesting form.

Tairrows Ltd. show a manganese bronze blade of the propeller of the Princess Charlotte and a few other products of their forges and shops.

Lemon-Gomanson Co., Ltd., displayed in finished form fine examples of Douglas fir manufactured into sideboards and tables. One piece designed by S. MacIure attracted particular attention.

The Cameron Lumber Co. have an exhibit of boxes and other material supplied to the British government for ammunition and other purposes.

The Associated Cement Co. had an interesting display of cement products in miniature. A pile of reinforced concrete with iron shoe was particularly attractive to many who are interested in new inventions and contrivances.

Swift Premium hams and bacon and other wholesale products are an exhibit of interest to the trade and to the public.

F. R. Stewart & Co. show fruit and butter of the well known local varieties and quantities which the firm handles.

J. G. Morris, artist and rug maker, had one of the most interesting exhibits in the fair. The rugs are made by hand and are artistically correct. Many were the inquiries as to the process of manufacture and the possibilities of making the rugs as a commercial venture.

Brown's moth proof cedar chests and furniture were not only Victoria made, but also of Victoria quality. The folding card tables were particularly interesting.

The Beehive Store exhibit was very interesting. The young people and the mothers of the young people are all interested in the dolls dressed by Mrs. Fowler. Ladies' Committee in Monthly Meeting Discusses Needs of Home and Acknowledges Donations.

The ladies' committee of the Protestant Orphanage met at the home on Monday, the president, Mrs. McTavish, presiding. The following members were present: Mesdames W. R. Higgins, D. Miller, Hiseocks, W. G. Cameron, Munsie, C. F. Todd, Bradshaw, Beard, J. Langley, Howell, A. Stewart, Huckel, Andrews, W. Scowcroft, Sherwood, Hammond, and Miss Metcalf. The house committee reported that 10 children had been admitted during the month, making a total of 60 in the home, all in good health. There had been generous donations of fruit during September, and this had been reported into jam for winter use. It was reported that the caves were in very bad condition, and tenders were received, the price quoted for the replacement of the troughs being $300. This, it was realized, would make a serious drain on the treasury. An offer from the "Looking Out" circle of the King's Daughters, Duncan, to assist with the clothing of the children was gratefully accepted. Bills amounting to $262.45 were passed, and Mesdames A. Stewart and W. G. Cameron were appointed visitors for the ensuing month.

COTSWORTH HAS A NEW TRIAL GIVEN

Court of Appeal Find for Ministerial Union in Lucas Libel Suit

ARBUTHNOT ASSOCIATES WIN COAL MINES APPEAL

The Dominion Trust Directors Judgment Will Not Be Given for Month

The court of appeal sat for about five minutes at 1 o'clock this afternoon and delivered judgment in a number of appeals which were heard in Vancouver at the last sitting there.

Of chief public interest were the decisions in the cases of the Pacific Coast Coal-mines, Ltd., v. Arbuthnot and others of what are known as the Victoria group among the shareholders, and in Lucas v. Ministerial Union of the Lower Mainland.

The ministers who were responsible for the publication of "The Crisis in B. C." and Moses Cotsworth are granted a new trial of the libel suit in which Alex. Lucas was the plaintiff and they were defendants, and which was heard before Mr. Justice Morrison and a special jury in Vancouver eighteen months ago. The defendant-appellants in the coal company case win, and the company was given leave to appeal to the privy council direct.

There were a number of lawyers in the court when the court met, several of these being from Vancouver. Among the latter was Miss Mabel P. French, who enjoys the distinction of being the first and, up to the present, the only woman who has been admitted to the Bar in British Columbia.

Chief Justice Macdonald and Hon. Justices Martin, Gallieher and McPhillips were all present. His lordship the chief justice read the note he had of the titles of the cases and the decision of the court on them. He intimated that the judgment in re the Dominion Trust directors was not yet ready and that this and other judgments not yet delivered would be handed down at the opening of the next sitting. The cases and judgments were as follows:

Hibben v. Crease, dismissed.

Singh v. Mitchell, allowed.

Logan v. Granby Company, dismissed.

Lyons v. Nicola, dismissed, McPhillips, J. dissenting.

Pacific Coast Coal-mines, Ltd., v. Arbuthnot et al., allowed.

Bank of Toronto v. Harrell, allowed, McPhillips, J. dissenting.

Barlow v. Breeze, dismissed.

Macdonald Bros. v. Godsen, dismissed.

Lucas v. Ministerial Union, new trial ordered.

Lilja v. Granby Company, dismissed.

Pelly v. Chilliwick, dismissed, McPhillips, J. dissenting.

Columbia Bithulth v. B. C. Electric, allowed, Martin, J. dissenting.

Luscombe v. Stewart, dismissed.

Rex v. Smith, dismissed.

Campbell v. Rogers, allowed, McPhillips, J. dissenting.

Champion and White v. Vancouver, allowed, McPhillips, J. dissenting.

Howd, McPhillips, J. dissenting.

Wade v. Worsnop, dismissed.

Rex v. Riley, allowed.

His lordship the chief justice intimated that when the Dominion Trust appeal is handed down it would be well of all the counsel interested in the argument to be present, as there might be one or two matters to be spoken to. Their lordships handed down written judgments in all the appeals which they had heard, but in the main there was no one judgment with reasons in all the cases on which all were agreed.

The appeal in the coal-mines case was taken by the defendants from the judgment of Mr. Justice Clement in favor of the company, which is now controlled by what is known as the New York group. The object of the suit was to annul an issue of debentures issued under an agreement of February 11, 1911, and to have it declared that a meeting held on March 1, the day the legislature prorogued after passing, among other legislation, a bill ratifying the agreement and providing for its adoption by a majority of seventy-five per cent. of the shareholders at this meeting, was improperly held and the resolution adopting the agreement not carried by the required majority.

In the court's judgment the chief justice declared that there was nothing in the objection that the notice calling the meeting was bad, because it was given prior to the passing of the special act; that the adoption of the agreement by seventy-five per cent. of the shareholders present, personally or by proxy, was all that was required; and that a majority of seventy-five per cent. of the whole body of shareholders was not called for. He continues:

"There can be no suggestion of fraud in connection with this meeting, nor in the manner in which it was convened. There is not, to my mind, the slightest indication of intentional concealment of facts. The meeting was attended by the principal shareholders, either in person or by proxy, and these represented 97 per cent. of the company's capital."

Since that time, the court remarks, the New York group, which then took over the business of the company, has conducted it legally, and the debentures have been legally issued.

The case was argued in the first instance, and later on appeal, by W. J. Taylor, K. C., for the company, and by E. P. Davis, K. C., and E. V. Bodwell, K. C., for the defendants.

The court is unanimous in granting the defendants in the Lucas libel suit a new trial. The opinion of the court is that there was a mistrial. The chief justice says that some of the remarks of the learned trial judge during the progress of the trial and in his charge to the jury were, to his mind, calculated to prejudice a fair trial of the action. Mr. Justice Gallieher says that after a careful perusal of the charge he is satisfied that the appellants were prejudiced in a fair trial of the issues. Mr. Taylor applied for special leave to appeal to the Privy Council in the Coal-Mines case. This was granted, the chief justice remarking that Mr. Justice Martin took no part in this matter.

The court will sit in Vancouver on November 7.

The suit of Rex v. Smith involved only the question of the legality or otherwise of a "gun vendor" in which the investor of a nickel gets a stick or so of gum and a chance to buy a certain number of counters on his next investment. From the point of view of the wealthy corporation which operates the machines the question was an important one. From a lawyer's point of view the question was interesting, for the Manitoba court of appeal had decided one way and Ontario the other.

Taking the view of the most recent decision, Magistrate Shaw, of Vancouver, declared the machines to be an illegal lottery and fined John Smith, the Main Street storekeeper who had it on his premises, Sir Charles Hibbert Tupper, K. C., and Frank Lyons argued the appeal for the owners of the machines and R. L. Maitland argued the case for the crown.

The court divided evenly on this case, and therefore the appeal stands dismissed. Justices Martin and McPhillips are of opinion that the appeal should be allowed, while the chief justice and Justice Gallieher take the view that it should be dismissed.

The appeal in the suit of Lilja v. Granby Mining Company is by the latter company against an award of $10,000 which a jury under Mr. Justice Clement awarded to the plaintiff, who had his arm shattered and eyesight injured by a premature blast. A former S. Wade was a juror was disallowed by Mr. Justice Gregory, and the court of appeal was asked to disallow the second award on the ground that Lilja was guilty of contributory negligence. J. W. deB. Farris appeared throughout for Lilja. "S. S. Taylor, K. C., appeared at the second trial and argued the appeal for the Granby company.

The appeal in the suit of Wade v. Worsnop was by Captain Worsnop and associates of Kamloops from the finding of the supreme court that Dr. S. Wade was entitled to foreclosure of a mortgage on the Kamloops Sentinel for a disputed sale made three years ago to the defendants. Douglas Armour appeared for Dr. Wade and J. W. deB. Farris for the defendant-appellant.

NOTES ON THE FAIR

A great deal of interest is being taken in the coming visit of James Fullerton (Laganberry Jim), of Eugene, Ore., who is to lecture to-morrow at the Home Products Fair on the growing of oregonberries and what results might be obtained from their culture.

The rugs made by J. G. Morris, of Sidney, are receiving much attention. The fact that the patterns are so artistic and that they are original in design adds to their value. Mr. Morris is willing to discuss with anyone interested the possibilities of establishing a carpet factory in this neighborhood.

The iron railing exhibit by Jas. Morrison and the other articles enclosed within the iron fence have been the subjects of comment. This work is all done by hand and is an excellent example of local handicraft.

Cantelopes and cabbages grown by Anton Henderson at his garden on Carey road indicate what may be done here. He also has some fine peaches in exhibition.

The Victoria Printing & Publishing Co. has an exhibit of Christmas cards and printed matter all of high quality, and also the Poultry and Pet Stock annual, a local publication edited by W. Miller Higgs.

Smith & Benzer are showing how the "abilla" cigar is made. The cigars are being rolled and turned out complete, and it is declared by those who smoke them that they are equal to any of the imported varieties.

PTE. R. T. MULLIN

Mrs. H. Mullin, of 710 King's road, has received a telegram reporting that her son Pte. Roy Turner Mullin had been killed in action on September 15. Pte. Mullin joined the 10th Canadian Mounted Rifles, at Moosimin, Saskatchewan, in February, 1915, and trained with that battalion at Swell Camp, leaving for England on August 18 of the same year. After arriving in England he was transferred to the Princess Patricia's and went to the trenches on March 1, taking part in his first battle on March 5, his nineteenth birthday. He was taken prisoner on June 2, and after being held for six days, escaped and made his way back to his battalion. Previous to enlisting Pte. Mullin was employed as a blacksmith in Moosimin and also worked as an electrician.

There are three other members of the family serving the colors, his brother, Pte. G. H. Mullin, who was with the Princess Patricia's, was wounded on June 2, and is now in a convalescent home in England. His father, Pte. H. Mullin, and another brother, Pte. W. V. Mullin, left here with the 88th, and are now in the 20th reserve. Besides his mother, who resides at 710 King's road, Pte. Mullin leaves two sisters living in the States.

WESTERN SCOT KILLED

PTE. ALFRED CAMPBELL

News has just been received of the death of Pte. Alfred Campbell, of the 67th Western Scots. He was the youngest son of the late Sylvester Campbell, of Kinellar Farm, Aberdeenshire, Scotland. He came to Victoria in August, 1913, when he joined the staff of the Bank of British North America. He enlisted in the 67th Western Scots, and went to England with that battalion before going to Belgium. He had been only three weeks in Belgium when he met his death. He was shot in the breast on the night of Sept. 1, and lived only a few hours. Twice he was offered a position of comparative safety, but he preferred to stand by his comrades in the trenches. He leaves to mourn his loss his mother, two brothers and two sisters in Scotland. During the time he was in Victoria he made his home with Mr. and Mrs. Christie, of the Bon-Accord, Princess avenue, and was a member of the First Presbyterian church. The sad news of Pte. Campbell's death was conveyed to Mrs. Christie by Pte. Mackenzie, another Victoria boy who was by his side when he fell.

Modern Shoe Fitting

Is like glove or corset fitting; it must be done scientifically. When we fit a shoe for a man, a woman or a child we do it on common sense principles. In the matter of Children's Shoes, for instance, we are at particular pains to provide the proper shoe, in the correct size and LAST. We know that in practically every case the child cannot tell whether a new shoe is pinching or not. It is attention such as this, in all departments, that is helping to make our business such a success.

CADORNA LAID HIS PLANS LONG TIME AGO

Italian Generalissimo Knows Every Foot of Territory on the Isonzo Front

Rome, Oct. 2.—Gen. Luigi Cadorna, chief of the general staff of the Italian army, is the Hindenburg to the Isonzo front. He knows every foot of the land, mountain or valley, every path through rocks, every fortress on the Austrian or on the Italian side. He spent many years in the district planning for the inevitable day of war with Austria and the best military strategy for meeting it, as Field Marshal von Hindenburg did in east Prussia in the Mazurian Lake region, close to the Russian frontier.

Cadorna's campaign to capture for Italy the great commercial seaport of Trieste, whose population is 77 per cent. Italian, which his men can now clearly discern not many miles away on the other side of the Austrian fortress of Gorizia, was the goal toward which his father, Gen. Raffaele Cadorna, led the army of Italy fifty years ago. The son, then a boy of eighteen, learning the military game at Milan and Bologna, was not permitted to accompany his father, who did not intend to give favors to anybody, even to those nearest to him.

Then Prussia's ally. Italy was then the ally of Prussia in the war against Austria, with France under Napoleon III, posing as Italy's friend and at the same time protecting Austrian interests. As Gen. Raffaele Cadorna drew nearer and nearer Trieste, France intervened. The glory of capturing this jewel of the Adriatic, under the sovereignty of Austria since 1842, had been achieved by no one but the great Napoleon Bonaparte had held it from 1797 to 1805, and from 1809 to 1813. Napoleon III, would not permit Italian soldiers to diminish the prestige of this feat by the French. Raffaele Cadorna's advance upon Trieste was abandoned. His troops were turned southward to join the army under Victor Emmanuel II, marching against Rome and the Vatican. Raffaele Cadorna was among the first officers to enter Rome and turn it over to Victor Emmanuel II, as king of United Italy.

Largely Responsible for Break. Italy's break with her former allies of the triple alliance and her entrance into the war on the side of Britain, France and Russia, was largely due to Gen. Luigi Cadorna, a senator at Rome, as well as chief of the general staff. Prince von Buelow promised that Trieste would be made into a free port, open to Italian commerce, under the same terms as it was to Austria, and Italy was to be further rewarded for her neutrality with additional privileges in the "Italy Unredeemed" of the Trentino. Prussia guaranteed the bargain. Italy had no reason to think it would be repudiated since she had received the province of Venice as a reward for alliance with Prussia against Austria in 1866—although the Austrian army and navy were victorious against the Italians. Gen. Cadorna preferred the soldier's way of trying to get Trieste by force of arms and keeping it in the sole possession of Italy.

Most Important Port. Trieste is the most important port of the Adriatic, having no rival for trade beyond the Hungarian port of Fiume, both under the rule of Francis Joseph. Known to the ancient Romans as Tergeste and founded 2,000 B. C., it was the old-time rival of Venice for maritime supremacy in the Adriatic, voluntarily offering allegiance to the Austrian crown to escape subjection under Venice. The harbor of Trieste, lying at the top of the Adriatic, and deep enough to shelter the largest vessels, was favored by nature for the important place the port takes as the terminal for most of the commerce for Germany as well as Austria, destined for the Levant, East Africa, Central America and Mexico. The Austrian government has spent vast sums of money in building new harbors at Trieste, in laying down railroads connecting the port with the interior, especially with Bohemia, and in organizing steamship service to the Orient and to the United States. In 1904 the great line of emigrant ships between Austria and the United States was inaugurated at Trieste.

For Mexican Emperor. Francis Joseph, as a young monarch, built at Trieste the magnificent palace Miramar as a present for his favorite brother, the Archduke Maximilian, afterwards, as emperor of Mexico, to suffer a horrible death. The Archduke Francis Ferdinand, Francis Joseph's heir, who was slain at Sarajevo in July, 1914, by Serbians, made his home at Miramar during part of every year. He superintended the organization of the industries: Petroleum refineries, chemical works, iron foundries, cement factories, manufacturing shops to turn out steam boilers and other fittings for ships in the town itself; in the neighborhood marble quarries, olive orchards and vineyards, superintending also the ever-increasing railroad traffic to the port and the great fleets of mercantile vessels leaving it for all parts of the globe.

Men of All Races Prosper.

The population of Germanic blood was only 5 per cent. but Italians, Slovenes and Germans all prospered enormously under the overlordship of Austria. The cupidity of Italy increased with every passing year as the wealth of Trieste mounted up and its importance grew. The Italian merchants, descended from families governed by Austria for five centuries, becoming princes of trade during the last two decades through the paternal solicitude of the Austrian government, were not eager to turn over Trieste to the Italian soldiers. Prince von Buelow found among the merchant princes of Trieste Italian in blood, his staunchest supporters. These Trieste merchants have no quarrel with the government at Vienna. They have no passionate desire to be ruled by the government at Rome. To-day they are living in the midst of their ruined factories and foundries; their ships of commerce can no longer proudly sail the sea. Trieste is devastated by shot and shells, many of its most beautiful landmarks carry the wounds of war, its population of all nationalities is poverty stricken, many of its people are homeless.

This is the Trieste which is the objective of Cadorna's soldiers. It is the monument of his military ambition. If he succeeds in capturing it, he can present to his sovereign only a city in ruins. That which made Trieste so desirable to Italian eyes, its commercial wealth, is gone.

Out of Limestone. The Duke of Aosta, the king of Italy's uncle, was at the head of the troops which entered Gorizia when the fort was taken. The king a few days later made a triumphal entry. Gen. Cadorna himself has not let the lime-light play around him at Gorizia. He has been too busy with other things.

On his mother's side Gen. Cadorna belongs to the ancient Piedmont house of Balbis, related to the Duke of Aosta. It has a tie to the United States since the Countess Alphonse Balbis, the wife of a young diplomat in the Italian service, is the granddaughter of the late Franklin S. Kinney, a distinguished and wealthy New York lawyer, who owned the Alhambra hotel. His only daughter became the wife of Count Glonoff, at the head of the royal household in Rome, their daughter being Countess Alphonse Balbis.

BILLINGS NOT SENTENCED AT SAN FRANCISCO YET

San Francisco, Oct. 3.—Hitherto unrevealed evidence introduced by his attorneys to-day postponed the sentencing to life imprisonment of Warren K. Billings, convicted of murder in causing the Preparedness Day bomb explosion here when ten persons lost their lives and forty were injured. Maxwell McNutt, attorney for Billings, and others indicted in the bomb plot, in an argument for a new trial for Billings, offered affidavits by Ray Ryder, an Alameda attorney, and Nell McAniff, an Oakland millhand, in support of the contention of the defense that the authorities had the wrong persons in custody in their prosecutions of the alleged plotters.

MANY LOSE LIVES IN ACCIDENT AT CLEVELAND

Cleveland, Ohio, Oct. 3.—Two street cars on the Scranton railroad line crowded with passengers at the rush hour, fell 50 feet this afternoon when the West Third Street bridge collapsed under them. Police and firemen and ambulances have been called to the scene. The two cars dropped a distance of 50 feet when the north end of the bridge collapsed and landed on the railroad tracks which skirt the river bank. The dead were all crushed in the mass of wreckage. Estimate of the dead place the number at between 75 and 100. Nineteen women, all seriously injured, have been taken to hospitals.

But don't you see, George, that if you'd only bring all these things down in the barrow instead of carting them here one by one, you'd do the job in half the time?

Yesir, but what would I be doin' with the other 'art o' the time?

COST OF LIVING MOUNTING IN STATES

Reports From Various Centres Show Great Increases in Some Lines

Washington, Oct. 2.—A marked increase in the cost of living is shown in the rising tendency of prices of food-stuffs, reports on which are being received at the department of agriculture from the principal markets of the country.

With flour selling at prices higher than any time since the civil war, due principally to the shortage of the wheat crop this year, the cost of potatoes has mounted for the same reason. Meat prices continue to advance, with prices being paid producers of animals showing almost 24 per cent. over what was paid a year ago. Onions are more than 50 per cent. higher, and cabbage more than 40 per cent. higher.

Prices paid to producers of farm products increased 3.3 per cent. during August. While during the last eight years the prices have shown a decrease of about 7.1 per cent. during that month, September began with the index figure of the prices 21.9 per cent. higher than it was a year ago.

Butter was selling about 12 per cent. higher than a year ago, according to the latest statistics available to-day at the department of agriculture. The price was one cent. a pound higher than it had been in eight years at this time of the year. Eggs were selling five cents per dozen higher than last year, but were lower for the period than in several of the last eight years. Potatoes were selling 116 per cent. higher than a year ago.

Cheese showed an increase in price of more than 23 per cent. over a year ago, and was higher than it had been in the last eight years, being 1½ cents a pound more than the highest price in those years.

Hogs were selling 25 per cent. higher than a year ago; beef cattle more than 7 per cent. higher; veal calves more than 10 per cent. higher; sheep more than 3 per cent. higher, and lambs more than 20 per cent. higher.

CHIEF STEPHENSON, NANAIMO, PENSIONED

Nanaimo, Oct. 3.—Chief of Provincial Police David Stephenson, of Nanaimo, has received official notification of his having been superannuated on pension at his own request, to take effect at the end of the present month. Chief Stephenson has been in harness for 35 years, and has a record in the service, second to that of no other man in the province. He started his career as a police officer in 1873 in the metropolitan police of London, Eng., in which he was speedily promoted to the detective branch. In 1879 he came to British Columbia, and for a number of years was located at Wellington, removing to this city upon his appointment as chief constable of the district.

DUKE OF DEVONSHIRE WAS QUITE SURPRISED

London, Oct. 3.—"I was never so surprised in my life as when the suggestion was made that I should become governor general of Canada," declared the Duke of Devonshire yesterday. "I had always hoped that I might do useful work at home, but it had never occurred to me that I had the qualifications for so great and important a position."

BAYONET INSTRUCTOR COMING TO VICTORIA

Winnipeg, Oct. 3.—Capt. R. A. Blaydon, an officer of the Fort Garry Horse, has returned to Winnipeg to undertake the duties of bayonet fighting and physical training instructor for western Canada. On Friday he will leave on an inspection trip which will take him as far as Victoria. Only recently he underwent an operation which prevents him from going overseas.

BRITISH HAVE NEW AEROPLANE AT WORK

Powerful Biplane Has Been Developed Specially to Destroy Raiding Zeppelins

London, Oct. 3.—A new "zeppelin chaser" aeroplane employed by the British home defence is one of the most formidable air fighting machines yet invented. The secrets regarding many details of its construction are closely guarded, and only the main features are now allowed to be mentioned in the press.

A French expert, Jacques Marsillac, who examined this machine, publishes an account of it as follows: "The machine is a tractor biplane of powerful construction with a high powered fixed motor. Its stability is remarkable, the machine being practically automatic. Landings can be made by this machine at relatively low speed. As for the form and volume of armament, it has been decided that the weapons are not to be made known until peace has been signed."

"I shall only add in this connection that if the Prussians continue to send zeppelins over London, it is ten to one that the day will come when their home sheds will see none of the again."

TO-DAY'S BASEBALL

Philadelphia, Oct. 3.—The Brooklyn club, after one of the hottest fights in its major league for years, won the National League pennant by virtue of winning its game against New York and Philadelphia's double defeat at the hands of Boston. The fighting Quakers lost the first game 6 to 3 and the second 1 to 1. Rixey was sent in to pitch the first game and lost it through a combination of bunched hits by Boston and bunched errors by his team-mates. In the second game Mayer held the Boston team at bay until the sixth inning, when he began to weaken. Boston tied the score in the seventh and went ahead in the eighth, Tyler clinched the game in the ninth. The double defeat was a heart-breaker for the Phillies. Brooklyn could lose all its remaining games and Philadelphia win all its and the final standing still would give Brooklyn the pennant by a narrow margin.

The standing of the clubs after to-day's games is as follows:

Club	Won	Lost	Pct.
Philadelphia	90	61	.596224
Brooklyn	89	62	.591444

Philadelphia has two games to play with Boston and two with Brooklyn have two left with New York.

"I had always hoped that I might do useful work at home, but it had never occurred to me that I had the qualifications for so great and important a position."

The Household Cavalry which is to furnish an infantry battalion from its reserves has changed a good deal in its two centuries and a half of existence. Charles II's original Life Guards were divided into three troops each of 200 carabineers, with officers, and the social standard was high, the privates being known as "Gentlemen of the Guards." They were drawn from families of some social standing, and were handsomely paid in comparison with other troops both then and now. Probably their most distinguished private, apart from military value, was Richard Steele—London Chronicle.

MILK WAR GOING ON IN NEW YORK STATE

Farmers Fighting Distributors for Higher Price; New York City Anxious

New York, Oct. 3.—The farmers of New York state tightened their grip on the milk supply to-day and caused a further reduction in the quantity of supplies to this city. The farmers are holding back the product of their dairies to compel the big distributors here to pay higher prices.

The milk war has spread throughout the state. Reports from all parts of New York tell of thousands of gallons of milk spilled in combats between the distributors and the employees of the dairies. The picketing of crossroads is daily repeated, farmers held up and beaten and the establishment of cheese manufactories to dispose of the surplus resulting from the withholding of New York city's supply. Twenty deputies have been sworn in in Dutchess county to prevent raids of farmers upon their neighbors to compel them to hold back their product. This followed an attack on a man who was severely beaten while the deputy sheriff who accompanied him was tied to a tree. Masked farmers are reported to be patrolling the roads in several counties, upstate, seizing milk and dumping it. In some places the farmers are collecting funds to build co-operative creameries.

New York has been brought to a realization of the seriousness of a possible milk famine. Big milk companies admitted that but approximately one-half of their usual supply had been received to-day and some of that came from long distances. Some express shipments were recorded, one of which came from Boston.

Hospitals and children have been looked after by the distributors. Private families have received preference over stores and restaurants, and consumers have been cautioned to conserve their supply. In fear of a threatened further shortage there has been a general stocking up on the canned varieties of milk.

OUTBURST IN NEW YORK BY IRISH MALCONTENTS

New York, Oct. 3.—Fifteen hundred Americans through whose veins flows Irish blood, on Sunday night in the theatre uproariously denounced President Wilson for his scathing telegram to Jeremiah J. O'Leary, whom the president called a "disloyal" citizen. The meeting was not held for the purpose of arraigning the president, but had been arranged a week ago as a forerunner for a great Irish relief fund bazaar to be held from October 14 to 22.

Peter Golden, the Irish poet, led in the defence of O'Leary and his friends. Prolonged applause greeted Golden's prediction that when the war ended "the people of Irish and German ancestry in this country kept the United States out of the great war, no matter whether a proud gentleman may boast that he did so," said Alphonse Koelbe. A storm of hisses greeted the veiled mention of President Wilson's name.

MONTREAL STOCKS

(By F. A. Borden & Co.)

Montreal, Oct. 2.—The strength in the local market was transferred to-day to the paper issues, with Wayagamac leading at six points above yesterday's level. The paper companies' old contracts are pretty well filled and they now are receiving the higher prices. The steel shares were fractionally lower. Iron was the most active stock, selling off about two points from the morning's high, but it recovered a point near the close. The exchange received an official announcement from the Dominion Iron Company that they would take up their notes due in two years on December 1.

Press reports indicate that the allotment on subscription of $10,000 and over to the new war loan will be cut. The old issue sold at 98 to-day and at one time was bid at 98 with none offered below 98. The close was irregular, but on the whole strong.

FAIR ENHANCED BY RED CROSS SECTION

Various Departments of Patriotic Effort Attract
Many Visitors

If the audiences continue throughout the week to be so large as those which patronized the Esquimalt Red Cross vaudeville entertainments given last evening at the Home Products' Exhibition the funds of the organization under whose auspices the concerts are being given will be very considerably augmented. The undertaking is quite an asset to the fair. Last night people were attracted immediately on entering the hall by the persuasive appeal of Mrs. R. H. Pooley and J. North, who lost not an opportunity to direct the visitor to the entertainment arranged for their delectation within the little theatre. And everyone was delighted with the programme.

Last night the entertainment was arranged by the 50th Gordon Highlanders, Sgt. Matheson being director-in-chief and Thomas Watson general manager for the theatrical committee. The performers were: Mrs. Moir, who gave a pianoforte solo; Bagley Sullivan, of the 50th Gordon Highlanders, who gave a solo; Miss Wallace, the clever young instrumentalist, who gave a bagpipe performance; Pte. Moir, of the 50th, who sang; Sgt. Gibson, of the 50th, who gave a club-swinging display; Sgt. Matheson, of the 50th, song; Drummer Nicol, of the 50th, Highland dance. Commander Shenton acted as chairman. Very nice stage settings have been supplied by G. Farris, Oriental scenery and costumes by J. M. Nagano & Co., and electrical effects by Hawkins & Hayward.

"Superfluties" Stall.
The Red Cross branches are taking a very active part in the exhibition, and in one way or another the patriotic endeavor is never lost sight of from the moment the hall is entered. Near the north entrance is the "Superfluties" stall, one of the cosiest and most artistic looking corners in the whole building owing to the electric warmers and the soft Oriental draperies. Mrs. Murdoch lent all the furnishings, and there are so many articles which have been contributed for raffia that the little apartment is full of beautiful things. The drawings will be held on Saturday night, and everyone holding a ticket should be present to see how the thing is conducted. Mrs. Henry Pearce, who has been in charge of the "Superfluties" rooms in the Belmont block, is supervising the display, assisting her being Mrs. Leeder, the Misses Pitts, Miss Bowser, Miss Fitzgibbon, Miss Peggy Pearce and Miss Mara. Among the things being raffied are silver candelabra, a cut-glass lamp, several Japanese prints and some oil paintings, an Oriental table-cover, a Shetland shawl, bric-a-brac, etc., valued at several thousand dollars.

It is in an ante-room behind the Superfluties display that the big cougar, mounted under F. Kermode's direction, has been placed on view, and at a ten-cent admission fee many people were admitted last evening to see the wild animal, which measures over seven feet from tip to tip, which attacked and fought two children at Cowichan lake last week. Sgt. Brown and R. H. Nunn are in charge of the exhibit, which is being shown under the auspices of the Esquimalt Branch of the Red Cross.

It is the Esquimalt Red Cross, of which T. H. Slater is chairman, that is taking charge of the vaudeville entertainments for the remainder of the week. Just in front of the little theatre they have a small Victoria products display all on their own account, locally grown fruits, flower seeds, and vegetables being part of the attractive exhibit. There are also several attractive articles in the way of needlework and fancy things, Miss Pooley, Mesdames Storey, Musgrave, Locke, A. W. Bridgman and James Harvey, and the Misses Bridgman and Meyer being in charge.

Tea Rooms.
Nothing is more welcome to the tired worker or visitor at the close of a long afternoon than a refreshing cup of tea, and many yesterday turned their steps to the balcony where the Oak Bay Red Cross committee will serve light refreshments during the week. The place has been very attractively set out for the purpose and a small individual table from which one can get a bird's-eye view of the interesting spectacle in the main hall below are arranged in a pleasing way along the gallery. Miss Thain's seven-piece orchestra played last evening. Mrs. Bullock-Webster, convenor of the ladies' sub-committee of the Oak Bay Red Cross, has assisted in the work of serving tea. Mesdames Lange, J. J. Shallcross, Perry, Floyd, Langes, Fraser and C. Curtis, and the Misses Clayton, Casey and others. Mme. Zurika has a fortune-telling stand in the same place, and for 50 cents will give an excellent reading of the tea-cups, the proceeds to go to the Esquimalt Red Cross. Contributions of cake, sandwiches, bread, and butter, etc., have been most generously given by friends.

The big birthday cake presented to the Municipal Chapter, I. O. O. E., for its party recently, is one of the ornamental monsters playing a useful part in the exhibition. Harboring, as it does, a liberal collection of oddly-shaped parcels, which may be supplemented by anyone who wishes to contribute cups and saucers, vases, anything in fact, it is particularly popular with the children, who readily pay the small sum asked for the chance draw of something really good from the cake. Mrs. Bessonet is in charge, assisting her being Mrs. Warder, Mrs. Sisman, Mrs. Harrop and Miss O. Turner.

Red Cross Work.
The central headquarters working committee, represented by Mrs. Harold Fleming of the Temple Building Red Cross work-rooms, has a very interesting display of needlework and other articles which are shipped in such quantities weekly to the military hospitals. Several electric sewing machines, lent by G. H. Fiedler, of the Bargain House, are used to demonstrate the manufacture of garments for the soldiers, both in and out of hospital. The Red Cross have recently given an order for 60,000 yards of flannel, and the miniature representation of the Temple building work-rooms is an excellent system of showing to the general public the manner in which the workers handle the material. Amputation and roller bandages, kit-bags, sock-making—both by hand and machine (a knitting machine has been brought down from Vancouver by Mrs. Welsh for demonstration purposes)—are all shown, and one department is devoted to the work of cutting-out and stitching shirts. The orderliness and fine organization which characterize the Temple building work-rooms is again apparent in the new surroundings, assisting Mrs. Fleming being Mesdames Gallagher, Sargison, Wilders and Gardiner.

Along the same lines is the display by the Angus Campbell Knitting Club, which has worked industriously to supply socks and other comforts to the soldiers. The public cannot assist the patriotic effort of these various Red Cross departments better than by patronizing the various undertakings which they have arranged at such pains and trouble for the advertisement of the work and the increase of their funds.

Side-shows include silhouette sketching by Mrs. Seeley-Smith, and it is under the auspices of the Esquimalt branch of the Red Cross Society that the model steam-engine which ran over the Stockton-Darlington railway just eighty-nine years ago, is being shown. There are also on view a number of handsome bear-skins collected by T. H. Slater during the early days in Northern Canada and Alaska.

The Red Cross section is, in fact, one of the most generally appealing in the whole building, as everyone is anxious to see the range of effort carried on on behalf of the soldiers who are fighting for the empire. There was a continuous stream of visitors through the porch of the building devoted to their various exhibits yesterday, and there is no doubt that the interest will wax rather than abate as the week advances. The tea rooms on the balcony are being reserved during luncheon hour on Thursday for the Rotary Club, which will hold its weekly lunch there at 12:30 o'clock. To-morrow exhibitors and manufacturers will meet at the same hour for the same purpose.

To-night's Programme.

Those who patronize the exhibition to-night should also make a point of hearing the Red Cross entertainment. Miss Watson and a troupe of young ladies will provide the bill, which will be as follows:—Melody, Miss Watson and chorus; vocal selection, "Somewhere a Voice is Calling," by George Swain; song, "They Wouldn't Believe Me," Miss Ethel Gladys Watson; waltz song, Miss Marjorie Hirst and chorus; "Broadway Hit," "Girls, if you ever get married," Tom Watson; vocal duet, "The Sunshine of Your Smile," by Miss Watson and Mr. Swain; ensemble, "Hawaii," Miss Elsie McJannet, Misses Marjorie Hirst, Evelyn Christie, Billie Pettigrew, Elsie Dumbleton, Laura Rudge, May Cameron, and Margaret Greig. Mrs. J. J. Boyd has direction of the chorus and dancing, and orchestra selections will be by Miss Marjorie Watson and Miss Edith Williams.

THE LITTLE MIND.

The man who wears me the most
Is not the one inclined to boast,
Nor is it he of manner loud,
Who seeks attention from the crowd.
But it's the man, who, when he reads
Or sees another's kindly deeds,
Says with a sneer and face all smirking,
That for the money he is working.

This fellow has so small a mind
He can't conceive an action kind,
And when a friendly deed is done,
Or some one helps another one,
He wonders it's his form of wit,
Just what he's getting out of it.
The only deeds he understands
Are done by cold and selfish hands.

Some day I'm going to tell this chap
That I don't care a single rap
What motive prompts my neighbor here
To scatter happiness and cheer.
That if he's getting rich on deeds
That serve his fellows' daily needs
I wish him luck, and wish each day
More of us sought our cash that way.
—Edgar A. Guest.

MAJOR PROCTOR TALKS OF NO. 5 HOSPITAL

Returned Soldier Addressed
Packed House at Princess Theatre

The Women's University Club were justified in their supposition that the general public would like an opportunity of hearing Major Proctor, one of the returned medical men who accompanied No. 5 General Hospital to Salonica, who last evening addressed a packed auditorium at the Princess theatre. His honor the lieutenant governor presided, with him on the platform being Miss Burris, president for the year of the Women's University Club.

Major Proctor was applauded as he passed through the audience on his way to the platform, and it was in the most informal and conversational way that he entertained his hearers for over an hour with reminiscences and recollections of the doings and experiences of the B. C. medical unit now at the Greek port. The empire, he said early in his talk, was fighting the greatest battle that the world had ever known for truth, liberty, and justice. If by any chance Germany should win—he did not think for a moment that she would—then the clock of progress would be set back for the world four hundred years. It had made him prouder than he had ever been before to be a British subject, prouder to be a Canadian citizen, after seeing how splendidly each man in the great army did his bit. He was particularly proud of being overseas with a British Columbia unit, the men from this province having sent of the very best material that was to be seen anywhere, men who had written on the pages of history a record that would never be erased.

"I speak for every member of the profession who went to the war," said Major Proctor. "We feel that the part that the medical man has played in this big fight has been absolutely insignificant compared with that of the man in the trench. We feel that it was a deep privilege to be able to go and look after these men."

Loved Fatalities.

It was with pride, however, that the speaker told of "The Silent Triumph" of the Canadian Army Medical Corps and the Royal Medical Corps, through the joint operations of which the number of fatalities in the Canadian army was greatly lowered. The total casualties in the Canadian army up to a few weeks ago were between 5,000 and 10,000 men. As the result of the industry of the doctors only 350 men had died from sickness. In the Boer war ten per cent. of the casualties were from enteric and typhoid. In the present war the fatalities from these causes were reduced to one-half of one per cent. Typhoid proper had been a curiosity in this war. There had been a sub-variety called paratyphoid, but the precaution of inoculation against typhoid taken at the beginning of the war had been extended to inoculation against paratyphoid as well, and this form had also been practically eradicated. The same with tetanus. The dread infection had been much feared at the beginning. Infection of a simple scratch was often fatal. Now, by inoculation, the thing was almost unknown. In the Crimean war twenty-five per cent. of the casualties had been from wounds, seventy-five per cent. from sickness and disease. The figures were reversed in the present war. The value of a physically fit army was realized.

The generous spirit with which the people of England had opened their homes for the care of the wounded was referred to by the speaker, who paid a tribute also to the fine services given by the Canadian medical corps. Titled ladies had posed the nurses' uniform and given their lives to the service as wholeheartedly as those trained for the profession.

Describes Salonica.

The strategic position of Salonica was defined. Possessing a magnificent natural harbor this ancient port on the northern shores of the Aegean and lying at the mouth of the Vardar river, it was, nevertheless, hundreds of years behind in development. There had been, in fact, docking facilities for only two ships when No. 5 hospital arrived there the latter part of 1915, and the harbor was full of craft waiting to discharge cargo and transports. Seen from the sea it was a beautiful and picturesque city, the almost eternal sunshine gleaming on the tiled roofs and minarets. But once ashore the place assumed a different aspect. The narrow streets were close and stuffy, and the smell of Salonica was unforgettable. In fact the latter feature was so dominant that the British Tommies took particular pleasure in writing verses of varying potency on the subject and contributing them to the Balkan News, published in the city. The people understood nothing whatever about sanitation, and it was a bad place for malaria. Its population of 300,000 was heterogeneous, a large proportion being Jews, while Greeks, Bulgars, Turks and representatives of all the Balkan nations were to be found within the city. It was the testimony of every British soldier that the Turk absolutely "played the game" as a soldier, that compared with the German he was a gentleman. "The unspeakable Turk," in fact, came through criticism a finer man than the self-announced "Christian" Hun.

Something of the Turkish bazaars was described, humorously by Major Proctor, who said that bargaining was the breath of life to these merchants. Arguments were long and heated, and commenced on the basis that the purchaser offered about four times as little as he expected to give, while the merchant asked about ten times as much as he expected to get.

Raison d'être.
The reasons for the British occupation of Salonica were given in brief by Major Proctor. The past few weeks had given a better answer than he would have been able to give. The British had gone to save Serbia. They were too late, the Bulgars having got in between and cut them off. But the allies could never forget that for 18 months the Serbians had held back practically the whole armed forces of Austria, and they were stashed in the back while Greece looked on.

Another point which Major Proctor brought out was that the allies, he felt after his observations of the permanent character of the forts erected at Salonica, intended to keep the peace of Europe after the present war. There was not the slightest doubt that an understanding had existed with Roumania for months, he added, supplementing his observations by saying that the whole situation, at that point in the map portrayed Germany's dream of an eastern empire by the establishment of a centre that would be a menace to Egypt and threaten India. But Bulgaria and Turkey were being slowly squeezed out of the war, and the end was not difficult to foretell.

A tribute to the magnificent valor of the French in war, the tragedy of Serbia whose magnificent little army had to retreat broken, exhausted and starved before the pressure of overwhelming numbers; the dauntless courage of the submarine men of the British navy were all dealt with appreciatively by Major Proctor before he concluded his address with an appeal to the nation for unity.

There was a collection in aid of the Victoria Patriotic Aid funds after an appeal by the lieutenant governor.

You Pay Lower Cost Per Mile Because Goodyear Tires Are Made in Canada

The Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co. of Canada, Limited, manufacture Goodyear Tires in Canada. They import only raw materials. Goodyear "made in Canada" tires cost you considerably less because the duty on raw materials is much less than that on finished tires.

Imported tires, however, bear this extra cost that adds nothing to the quality.

Choose, then, between Goodyear Tires, carrying the low duty on raw materials, and imported tires, carrying the high duty on finished products. Do you see that the higher price you pay for imported tires does not necessarily mean higher quality?

So the situation stands with the majority of imported tires selling at higher prices than Goodyears.

In the United States most of these same tires sell for less than Goodyears. But they do not have nearly so large a sale. American motorists find that Goodyear higher cost per tire gives lower cost per mile.

In Canada, where Goodyear cost per tire is lower than that of imported tires, Goodyear cost per mile must be much lower.

Judge from the tables below the saving made on Goodyears by the Goodyear factory at Bowmanville. Judge, too, from the typical mileages given, the Goodyear quality. And add to these advantages the tire-satisfaction gained by using Goodyear Service Stations marked by this emblem.

GETS THROUGH AGENDA WITH PROMPTITUDE

City Council Lays Aside Debating Habit for an Evening

The city council last evening was in a less critical mood than has been the case for some time. Therefore with the controversial questions of the Johnson street bridge, and Sunday trading quietly tabled, the business was disposed of in quicker time than has been the case for a considerable period.

A number of by-laws were on the agenda, paper, all of which were laid over. They were as follows: Recommendation of Municipal Officers' Amendment By-law, but by-laws not yet introduced laid on the table, namely, Revenue Consolidation By-law Amendment By-law, Food Regulation By-law Amendment By-law, and Hired Vehicles By-law, 1914, Amendment By-law.

The by-law providing for the repaving of Yates street, between Douglas and Government streets, with asphalt, was passed. Granite blocks are to be placed next to the street railway tracks to preserve the edges of the pavement. The council has accepted the tender of the Phillips Stone Works for 180 square yards of plain granite blocks for this purpose at $1.85 a yard, and for 145 square yards of bull-nosed granite blocks at $2.35 a yard.

Already indicated in the proceedings of the last court of revision, John Barnsley has lodged a definite claim for compensation for alleged damage done by the improvement work on Gorge road. He claims the sum of $5,000 for being shut out for 140 feet from Gorge road frontage by the construction of the bridge over the ravine in 1912. The assessment on the road has been quashed already, and another is ordered.

The subject went to the solicitor. A question with regard to Stannard avenue was referred to the finance committee, since Mr. Woodward stated that the first levy had been made, and asked to have it deferred till May, under circumstances already reported to the court of revision.

The solicitor made reference to certain difficulties which have arisen, and which are to have attention. J. A. Argyle wrote with regard to the question of the petition of civic employees for the restoration of wages to the old level. He strongly opposed the suggested increase.

The assessment clerk said he had been unable to trace the writer, who was not in the directory or on the voters' list.

The mayor deprecated the reading of an anonymous letter, and said it should be put in the wastepaper-basket, a copy of which was adopted.

The epistle was then formally destroyed by the mayor.

With regard to the placing of rock in front of Ross Bay seawall since the repairs were completed, the committee recommended that some work should be done, but opposed the proposal to use rock from May or from Eberts streets.

Alderman Todd thought it would be sufficient to use rocks as they "ran in the quarry," not "large" rocks as mentioned.

Alderman Johns explained the limited nature of the committee's project, using rock and sand to save the wall.

Tenders will be invited, including the opportunity to use rock from Eberts street.

Alderman Fullerton strongly urged clearing up the streets mentioned by removing the rock.

Alderman Walker pointed to the difficulty of making the deposits in front of the wall at this time of the year unless the tides in Ross Bay are carefully studied.

The clerk of the Sanich municipality wrote with regard to the city's parks in Sanich municipality, asking the council to agree to have the taxes spent in the beaches at Cadboro Bay and Cordova Bay.

Alderman Porter suggested another committee meeting, to see if something better could not be done. The recve had agreed to another meeting with the special committee, pointing out that Victoria people mainly used the beaches.

The matter was then sent back to the special committee for attention. Amendment of the market by-law is to be made in order that some ambiguities which exist in the present ordinance may be cleared up.

Alderman Johns said the object was to encourage the small producer, by allowing one man to sell for a number.

The new section reads: "The following property may be offered for sale or sold in the inside section of the garden, dairy, viz, the products of a farm, produced on Vancouver Island or adjacent islands of British Columbia, and articles manufactured or produced therefrom, and fish, meat and poultry, dressed or undressed. Live poultry and rabbits, dogs, cats and other pet animals may be sold, provided they are kept in suitable crates."

The by-law was laid over to permit the solicitor to look into some details.

The Piraeus may be said to have lost the glory that was Greece and to have taken on the glory of the East. For the old port of Athens, with its many temples, never recovered from the blow struck at it by Sulla; until the English manufacturer entered upon the scene, and covered the ancient site with his factories. These now take the local wool or the Eastern cotton and make out of them nice little garments for the Greek boys and girls.

Some years ago a benevolent Greek government assisted our manufacturers by issuing an order that the children must abandon Greek dress, an order that has substituted dividends and utility for the picturesque. —London Chronicle.

SHARP REJOINER TO DEPARTMENT'S ACT

Council Insists on Payment of School Salary Subsidy

The finance committee, the comptroller and the solicitor will report on the position with regard to the difference with the department of education concerning the per capita grant. This course was decided upon by the city council last evening. The subject has been the outcome of the unusual action of the department of education in declining to pay the last quarter's subsidy towards the cost of teachers' remuneration, owing to a difference of opinion with the school board on the August salaries of some new teachers. The comptroller wrote on the matter in part as follows:

"There is absolutely no authority on the part of the superintendent in this action. The reason is a dispute between the trustees and certain teachers who commenced work on August 28, as to the amount of salary due them for that month. The superintendent has ordered the school trustees to follow certain lines which the trustees refuse to do, therefore the superintendent has withheld the grant from the council who have nothing to do with the matter at all."

"The whole of these proceedings on the part of the superintendent are absolutely illegal. There is no warrant for him to appoint himself guardian of the teachers, nor to act as judge between the teachers and the trustees regarding their salaries. Nor to withhold the government grant if his orders are not carried out."

"The only reasons for which the grant may be withheld are contained in section 23 of the Public Schools Act. They are the failure of the trustees to make their returns by a certain date, and that the schools have not been open for a certain time."

The mayor said he saw no authority to withhold that cheque, and as minister of finance he had written to Dr. Robinson, superintendent of education, to know by what authority it had been done. As they all knew, the council had no control over the school board. "Victoria," he said, "has a good case, and so far as I can, I will see that the city gets the money."

The letter was then referred to the committee named previously.

Saanich School Board's Alternative Proposal Under Consideration Last Evening

The Saanich School Board last evening considered the alternative proposal with regard to relieving the pressure on accommodation at Tolmie school.

Hitherto the plan has been to provide for relief at the vicinity of Burnside and Tillicum road, by a new school there. The board, however, has become sharply divided as to the best location, and the feelings of the residents in the Gorge district have been greatly stirred.

For a long time it has been pointed out that the North Dairy school was so located that the children had to go out from round the city boundary to attend it and therefore Inspector May has suggested a school on Quadra street, near the city limits, which would not only relieve the situation at Tolmie school, but also permit withdrawal of Saanich children at Quadra street school, just inside the boundary.

The proposal at Tillicum was for a school of which only part would be built this year and the remainder following in 1917, the government building the school and the ratepayers providing the site. The Saanich council has promised an appropriation for the site, and therefore Chairman J. L. Brooks explains that the trustees thought last evening that the fairest course would be for the board to approach the municipal council. In that way they would ascertain if the council would be willing to allow the transfer of the appropriation to purchase another site. The government has promised an eight-room school on the new location, if the necessary arrangements can be made.

It was stated at the recent conference on the matter that the Gorge residents are willing to wait for a school, provided that when it is built it can be placed in the location which has been so strongly urged by petition.

Weak, Nervous Children Quickly Gain Strength Under Following Plan

Nervousness, just like weakness, is a family predisposition. We inherit tendencies to disease just as we inherit physical resemblances. The strain of study, social duties, work at home—these all tend to make nervous troubles among children. No wonder that St. Vitus Dance, Epilepsy, and constant headaches have become alarmingly common. Pale, nervous, listless young people are met everywhere.

It is nothing short of criminal for parents to neglect signs of weakness in their children. By ignoring the slightest symptom of nervous or mental strain, you may condemn your child to life-long invalidism. If any member of your family complains of headaches, fear of going into dark places, give them that wonderful tonic, "Ferrozone." Strength of body and mind, hardy nerves, ability to study with comfort, all the attributes of health quickly follow the use of Ferrozone. It establishes strength, color, endurance, vim—does this by filling the whole system with nourishment and tissue-forming materials.

It's because we know the enormous good that Ferrozone will do, because we are sure every child and even grown folks, will be permanently benefited, that we urge you to give it a trial. All dealers sell Ferrozone in 50c boxes, six for $2.50, or direct by mail from The Catarrhzone Co., Kingston, Ont.

FINDS NO CONFLICT IN TWO ACTIONS

City Solicitor - Reports With Regard to Johnson Street Bridge

There is nothing conflicting between the action of the council as adopted by resolution on June 12, to transfer the negotiations to the government, and the signature of the agreement by the minister of public works on August 7, 1915, according to the advice tendered by the city solicitor to city council last evening as regards the status of the Johnson street bridge project.

The subject came up in answer to a request put by Alderman Fullerton in the form of a motion at the previous meeting.

The report said the agreement had "no binding effect" either on the government or city. "In law it is merely an incomplete step in the negotiations."

"Evidently," said Alderman Fullerton, "the agreement was only a scrap of paper." He pointed out that the council could scarcely claim to have shown good judgment in the method adopted in these negotiations. He regarded the position now as a new one. For that reason he felt it would have been best to have the agreement of 1915 cancelled formally.

Alderman Porter thought the matter had been dealt with most peculiarly. After two months of discussion they had come to the solicitor for an opinion, which should have been received at first.

The report was received and filed.
